MEXICO
SHAKEN

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A quake lasting more than a minute shook the Mexican capital today. Skyscrapers trembled from the force of the tremor. There were no immediate reports of casualties or damage.

Police said the quake was felt in the Pacific resort of Acapulco, 190 miles southwest of Mexico City, and in Veracruz, a Gulf of Mexico port 200 miles to the east.

Telephones continued to function in the capital and electric service was not disrupted.

Syrian
Jets Hit
Beirut

Times News Services

BEIRUT — Syrian jets attacked Palestinian and Leftist positions in Beirut with light missiles today and two columns of Syrian army tanks and troops advanced toward leftist Moslem strongholds on the road to the capital.

Leftist spokesmen said the Syrians were planning an attack on the capital itself.

Moslem gunmen fought Syrian-backed Saqqa guerrillas in the streets of the city, prompting authorities to close Beirut International Airport "until further notice."

The fighting was described as one of the bloodiest battles of the 14-month old civil war.

The Syrian planes attacked Palestinian and Leftist positions in Beirut's port district, the southern suburbs and the mountain town of Sofar, 16 miles east of the capital.

Shortly after the strafing run, half-track vehicles of Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Army equipped with anti-aircraft missiles were seen touring the Moslem area.

Palestinian sources also claim Syrian gunboats shelled the Klelaat air base in northern Lebanon after guerrillas and renegade Moslem troops of the Lebanese Arab army occupied it.

Meanwhile, Arab League headquarters in Cairo today called an emergency meeting of Arab foreign ministers to open here Wednesday to consider "the deteriorating situation in Lebanon," a League spokesman said.

Binding
Terms
For CUPE

NANAIMO (CP) — The three striking Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) locals Sunday night voted to accept binding arbitration to settle their contract dispute with the Mid-Island Public Employers' Association that began two months ago.

The three locals, 401, 406 and 1858, went on strike April 5 here and in Ladysmith.

Labor Minister Allan Williams said that an industrial inquiry commission will be appointed and will have 14 days to bring in recommendations to end the dispute. The appointment was to be announced today.

Nick Mieras, spokesman for Local 606, said Sunday that the union has taken the initiative in the dispute and has called for a mediation several times, while also agreeing to an industrial inquiry commission weeks ago.

He said if the employers association had agreed to an industrial inquiry commissioner then, the dispute would have been over by now.

The labor minister said Sunday that the decision by the CUPE locals was a major step forward and that the dispute should be resolved within the next two weeks.

Mieras said the union pickets will remain the same until the terms of reference are determined today.

Strikers Menace Airline

KITIMAT (CP) — RCMP are investigating an incident in which eight or nine members of the Canadian Association of Smelter and Allied Workers Union are alleged to have threatened the office staff of an airline flying supplies to management staff running the Aluminum Co. of Canada mill here.

Police confirmed that they investigated an incident at the mill. Since Wednesday, management personnel have stayed at the mill, continuing operations, while striking union members have manned barricades and picket lines outside.

135 Missing in Dam Burst

IDAH0 FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Flood waters continued to roll across southeastern Idaho today, forcing evacuations 30 miles from the site where the Teton Dam burst two days ago. (See pictures on Page 39.)

The official death toll stood at six with 135 persons reported missing. Officials said many of the missing may just be out of touch with relatives.

A breakdown in telephone communication and road travel hampered efforts to determine the status of the missing.

The farming town of Firth was evacuated during the night, and officials said today the town was under water. No injuries were reported in the community of 400 because of an early warning that the slow-moving flood crest was coming.

Merle Tebb, federal disaster emergency director in Boise, said considerably more damage is expected. The dam burst has already flooded several communities.

Part of Idaho Falls was evacuated after midnight Sunday night when a bridge, battered by the still-rising waters, began buckling and threatened to break. It held, and observers said the water level appeared to have dropped several feet by sunrise.

There were numerous rumors connected with the disaster, including one that rattlesnakes were floating downstream from the Teton Valley.

Blair Seipert, police chief of Rexburg, the worst-hit city, said the valley is infested with the poisonous snakes but he has heard of no one being bitten.

Officials say thousands of people were warned that the controversial earthen dam was about to collapse and the advance notice helped reduce

$300 MILLION FROM CANADA

$5 Billion Loan

HEALEY

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Canada, the United States and nine other countries have joined the World Bank to provide emergency credits of $5 billion to bolster the sagging British pound, it was announced today.

At Ottawa, a Bank of Canada spokesman said Canada will provide up to $300 million as part of the package.

FORT STEELE (CP) — Two injured members of a mountain climbing party were flown from a mountain peak near this southeastern British Columbia community today.

Bob and Mavis Bauman of Wasa are in satisfactory condition in Cranbrook Hospital after being injured when a small snow slide frustrated their efforts to climb the northface of Fisher Peak. The third member of the party, Chris Sadler, was uninjured and walked out for help Sunday night.

Heart Attack
Break

CAPE TOWN (Reuter) — A team of South African doctors believe it has made a breakthrough toward preventing sudden heart attacks by discovering what causes them, a spokesman for the Groote Schuur Hospital said Sunday.

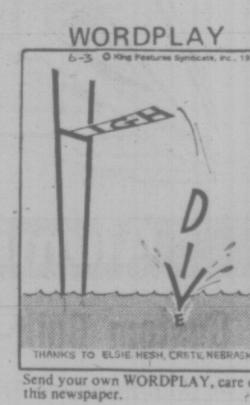

The team, led by Dr. Lionel Opie, said it has identified the chemical in the body which causes ventricular fibrillation — the medical term for the type of sudden heart attack which kills 25 per cent of all white South African men before they reach the age of 50.

The chemical is cyclic adenosine monophosphate, a cyclic AMP, one of thousands present in every living cell in the body.

The level and activity of the chemical rose during artificially-induced heart attacks in animals, mainly pigs, rats and baboons.

"We appear to have found the cause of heart attacks, but this does not mean we have found the cure," Dr. Willem Lubbe, a member of the research team, said.

"We have found the mechanism which causes attacks and when appropriate drugs are developed it will probably be possible to prolong life."

MELBOURNE (Reuter) —

A group of Australians worried about graveyard congestion have begun a worldwide campaign to have people buried standing up.

The Society for Perpetual Interment hopes to convince people that everyone should be buried upright, in cylindrical cardboard coffins.

The British Columbia Labor Relations board has twice ordered the workers back to work, but has been met with refusals both times.

A spokesman said normal, horizontal burials take needed space in an already overcrowded world.

BILINGUALISM
PROBER QUIT

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Otto Lang announced today the resignation of John Keenan from his position as special commissioner into bilingual air traffic control.

Keenan's resignation followed last Friday's announcement by L'Association des Gens de l'air du Quebec, a French language air transport group, that it would refuse to cooperate with the inquiry and the government unless changes were made to the commission.

Keenan once was counsel for the Canadian Air Line Pilots Association, which vigorously opposes extension of bilingual air traffic control.

NIVerville, Man. (CP) — Two Winnipeg residents were killed Sunday afternoon when a severe thunder and lightning storm hit this southern Manitoba community.

Wayne Petrusiak, 28, and Adele Ross, 34, died when lightning struck a tree under which they had sought shelter from the storm. They were among participants at field trials of the Manitoba Dog and Gun Club.

Mary Penney, 32, of Thunder Bay was treated in hospital and released.

The lightning strike also killed a dog.

THREE BODIES FOUND AT FIRE

DELTA (CP) — Police and firemen answered a call to a house fire here early today and found three people dead, apparently of head injuries suffered in a beating.

They arrived on the scene to find a fire burning in a basement suite on Cape Breton Island, a tiny community of Main a Dieu.

The church had been a landmark for fishermen, who were able to see its spire from the sea.

Small groups of villagers stood in the streets and wept openly.

At least two firefighters have been taken to hospital suffering from smoke inhalation but were not injured seriously.

In the early hours today, residents began to return to their homes after finding temporary refuge with friends and relatives in nearby Louisbourg.

At least three fires besides the Main a Dieu blaze were burning on Cape Breton Island, including a major outbreak at Big Ridge, near Marion Bridge, which was out of control along a 10-mile front.

In Manitoba, a fire three miles by 10 miles burned out of control in part of the 1,065-square-mile Whiteshell provincial park.

Cottagers and campers have been moved from the area.

More than 160 men were fighting the fire Sunday, transported by three military and two civilian helicopters.

In northwestern Ontario, about 50 persons in the small railway community of Allandale and surrounding area, 125 miles north of Thunder Bay, left their homes Saturday night as a fire approached the region.

Keenan once was counsel for the Canadian Air Line Pilots Association, which vigorously opposes extension of bilingual air traffic control.

MEXICO FISH CLAMPS

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Mexico has closed the 600-mile Gulf of California to foreign fishing and proclaimed an economic zone extending 200 miles from its Pacific and Gulf coasts to restrict fishing and offshore mining.

U.S. embassy sources said the move would not have a dramatic impact on American fishermen because there are not many fish in the affected waters and U.S. boats do not generally fish there.

Mexico announced Feb. 13 it intended to restrict fishing and mining in the area, but it was not expected to implement the restrictions until late July.

The closure was announced Sunday by Mexican Undersecretary of External Affairs Jorge Castaneda and took effect under a constitutional amendment.

"By establishing from now on its exclusive economic zone, Mexico has taken an historic step which points to promising courses for the independent economic development of the country," Castaneda said.

Castaneda said foreign vessels will still be able to use all Mexican ports. However, foreign fishing boats will be required to obtain government permits to fish within 200 miles of the Mexican coast, he said.

Foreign fishing rights will be reduced in the future, he added, toward a goal of "total exclusion."

Under the amendment, Mexico controls all "exploitation" of the 200-mile zone, including harvest of marine life and minerals.

The waters of the 600-mile Gulf of California — between the Baja California peninsula and mainland Mexico — will become interior waters under exclusive Mexican jurisdiction.

Castaneda said outsiders will have to pay a quota "which will be a real economic benefit" to Mexico and not just a symbolic payment in return for fishing rights.

California Burial Slated for Getty

Times News Services

LONDON — J. Paul Getty, who died Sunday at 83, was always disliked being called one of the world's richest men — not out of sensitivity, but because he felt it classified him as "some sort of freak."

The Minneapolis-born attorney's son, who made his first million by the age of 24, died one minute after midnight, succumbing to a heart attack at his mansion, Sutton Place.

He had been in failing health for some time.

Noel Brebrett, Getty's longtime assistant, said the oil magnate's body would be flown to California — where Getty grew up — for burial.

Getty left his family with assets reportedly worth between $10 billion and $20 billion, but he could never get used to being tagged one of the world's richest men.

"It sounds like you are some sort of freak — the world's tallest man, the heaviest man, the wisest man, the most foolish man, the world's shortest midget," he told a recent interviewer.

He said he preferred to be remembered as a man of many talents — businessman, linguist, art connoisseur, health fanatic.

He said more than once he did not feel guilty about his wealth, but stories about his alleged frugality were legion: How he worked from an inexpensive two-room apartment, how he locked the telephones at his Surrey mansion, how he charged a film company photographing his dogs.

In his recent autobiography he said he intended to donate the bulk of his oil fortune to charitable foundations.

Getty was married five times, to women whose ages ranged from 17 to 21. All of the marriages ended in divorce, the last in 1958. For several years recently he was attentive to Margaret Duchess of Argyll, and his 43-year-old hostess at Sutton Place, Rosabella Burch, told a magazine interviewer recently that she wanted to marry him. But Getty once told a reporter: "When you have crash-landed five times, you give up flying."

Primaries Down to the Wire And All Candidates Flying

NO-ONE MORE SOUND THAN PRESIDENT...

MONTEREY, Calif. (FP) — The upper crust of long-skirted Republican Party society mingled on the patio of the posh Pattee Ranch as first lady Betty Ford, accompanied by soft chords played by a poolside trio chatted to matrons and their well-scrubbed daughters.

Her escort was Burt Talcott, the Republican congressman for this romantic coastal community. He supported Ronald Reagan for president in 1968, and was an ardent apologist for Richard Nixon in 1974. On Saturday he introduced Betty Ford to the crowd of 200.

"President Ford's policies are working . . . there is no one in the country more sound than President Nixon," he said.

Talcott and Mrs. Ford tried to cover up the blunder. "Don't let that worry you. Last night I said I was proud to be president," Mrs. Ford said.

Times News Services

With only hours to go before the windup of the long 1976 U.S. presidential primary season, all of the candidates were on the stump — rhetoric escalating, accusations flailing, promises rife.

The three states — California, Ohio and New Jersey — where primaries are slated

Tuesday will have close to a third of the total number of delegates needed for both Republican and Democratic nominations.

California is the biggest, but since it is considered all but sure to go for its Democratic governor, Jerry Brown, and his Republican former governor, Ronald Reagan, most of the excitement was elsewhere.

After fast-paced weekends, Democratic candidates Jimmy Carter, Morris Udall and Frank Church stumped in Ohio. Brown was in New Jersey, with Carter planning activity there today.

President Ford was in Ohio today and Reagan campaigned in his home state.

As the primary circuit, which began in February in New Hampshire, neared a close, Reagan picked up 35 new delegates in weekend state conventions — 15 in Louisiana, 17 in Virginia and three in Colorado.

Ford picked up one in Virginia.

The changes give Ford 806 delegates and Reagan 690 with 1,130 needed for nomination.

California is a winner take-all primary and the most recent California poll shows Reagan the leader for the state's 167 delegates.

Ford is favored to take a hefty portion of the 164 total delegates from New Jersey and Ohio.

There was little change on the Democratic side with Minnesota giving 16 of its delegates selected Sunday to Senator Hubert Humphrey and three were chosen uncommitted.

Humphrey said last week he may reassess his stand against active campaigning for the nomination.

Among Democrats, Carter, a former Georgia governor, now has 809 delegates; Udall, a congresswoman from Arizona, 307.5, and 393.5 are uncommitted with 1,305 needed for the nomination.

Reagan Eyeing The N-Button

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan, pressing his campaign argument that U.S. defences have faltered, says that if the Soviet Union moved in Western Europe, the United States might be left with no recourse but "the one thing that none of us wants at all, the nuclear button."

"The day we push the nuclear button, we know that we do not have the nuclear superiority we once had, we don't even have parity," the former California governor said in an interview with The Associated Press.

The Russians now are "in the position of being more truculent and aggressive with

Top Jobs Begging

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The most sweeping Congressional leadership changes in recent history were assured for next year with speaker Carl Albert's announced retirement.

At least seven, and possibly as many as eight or nine, top jobs on both democratic and republican rolls of house and the use of conventional arms, knowing that there is virtually no way we can prevent this," he said.

Reagan repeated that he is determined to preserve U.S. sovereignty over the Panama canal and the zone surrounding it.

Reagan said he is not concerned about the impact elsewhere in Latin America if the canal negotiations are ended. He said countries like Chile and Peru depend on the canal.

"I don't think they want a dictator of a small country there having the right and the ability to shut off that canal," he said.

Albert's announcement Saturday came as no surprise and his successor generally is conceded to be House Democratic leader Thomas O'Neill of Massachusetts, a 63-year-old Boston politician and House veteran who has been leader since 1972.

N-Plant Controversy Dividing California

WASHINGTON — John Byrnes is buried in his hometown of Utica, N.Y.: Richard Legg in his hometown of Kingston, Mich., and Richard McKinley in Arlington National Cemetery.

As far apart as they are, their graves are strikingly similar. The caskets are lined with lead and sunk in concrete. The coffins rest inside metal vaults driven as far as 10 feet into the ground. Concrete has been poured on top of the vaults so that relatives of the dead men can freely visit and care for the grave sites.

Byrnes, Legg and McKinley were given such elaborate burials because they died together in what is still history's only fatal atomic power accident.

Now more than 15 years old, it was an accident that killed two of them at once and the third two hours later — a tragedy that left their bones and bodies radioactive.

Their deaths are part of a burning debate about whether the U.S. should turn to nuclear energy for its electricity for the next 50 years.

The nuclear debate has inflamed parts of 30 states, dividing communities and even households. Some divorces have been set in motion in California and New York by family nuclear differences.

Sit-ins, walk-ins, pray-ins and shout-ins have been held for and against nuclear energy. There are at least 50 different bumper stickers damning or praising atomic power.

Two Solid Reforms

Bills 45 and 48, respectively, the Auditor-General Act and the Ombudsman Act introduced recently in the B.C. legislature, are two solid reforms that will help make government more responsive and responsible.

There's nothing half-hearted about the redemption of these Social Credit campaign pledges. Clearly, the government has taken the best features of legislation elsewhere and combined them to produce model statutes.

Of course, much will depend upon the interpretation of the legislation by the individuals appointed to fill the two positions. A man such as Maxwell Henderson, federal auditor-general for many years, was the taxpayers' best friend. Even though the federal government tried to keep him on a short leash — ignoring his reports, refusing his requests for more staff — Henderson accomplished a great deal.

The B.C. auditor-general, whomever he may be (and certainly he or she will be no party hack, for a legislative committee must recommend the appointment unanimously) will enjoy powers considerably wider than the federal auditor-general does, or any other provincial auditor-general.

The B.C. auditor-general shall be able to bring to public attention whether or not accounts have been properly kept and funds accounted for, essential records maintained, rules and controls for expenditures and collection of revenue are sufficient, public money has been spent for the purpose authorized by the legislature.

In addition, he may also state (a public confidante by the fiscal ledgermain of the last six months will welcome this one) "whether the financial statements of the government are prepared in accordance with the most appropriate basis of accounting for the purpose of fair representation and disclosure."

There is also the power to state whether any program of a department of government is being administered "economically and efficiently" — which will make the politicians and senior bureaucrats writhe, no doubt, as Henderson embarrassed Ottawa mandarins, but it is something which the public will welcome.

It states that the legislature — in effect the governing party — may "make rules for the guidance of the ombudsman in the exercise of his power and performance of his duties." There is no similar provision in the Auditor-General Act. If he or she is to be truly independent, free to investigate anything done by the Government or its agencies, crown corporations and boards, then the ombudsman should be free to establish his own rules.

But that is only a minor quibble which should not detract from the magnitude of the reform accomplished in these two pieces of legislation, one affecting fiscal matters, the other social affairs. The two will do much to cut through the confusing (to the general public) complexity of modern government and to provide a double safeguard that because of its enormous size, no injustice shall go undetected for long.

One need not go over recent history to emphasize just how revolutionary this change will be in B.C. politics.

The B.C. ombudsman will fulfill a similar role as public advocate and investigator, like the auditor-general without actual power to overturn or reverse any decision or action but relying on the influence of publicity and the weight of public opinion.

His appointment will be by the same method as the auditor-general, and should enjoy the same independence, but there is a section in the enabling legislation which gives some cause for concern, although Attorney-General Garde Gardom says it should not.

It states that the legislature — in effect the governing party — may "make rules for the guidance of the ombudsman in the exercise of his power and performance of his duties."

Too Many Lawyers

Maureen McTeer flunked her law exams, but she shouldn't get too upset. If it's one thing Canada needs least urgently, it's more lawyers in government. They dominate the House of Commons, from Prime Minister Trudeau to freshman MP Art Lee.

From Treasury Board President Jean Chretien to John Diefenbaker, Bud Drury, Jean-Eudes Dube; from Tory intellectual Gordon Fairweather, Supply and Services

Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer, Conservatives Heward Graffey, Ray Hnatyshyn and Leonard Jones — they're all barristers and solicitors. Muckraker Elmer MacKay, whose conduct has been most unluckily, is the exception that proves the rule.

Wonder why parliament now sits almost year-round, why it takes so long to enact legislation? Loquacious lawyers, pettifogging lawyers, who talk and talk and talk. Who to blame for the rotten state of federal finances and the national economy — Keynes or Galbraith?

Look at who's been in charge the last 3½ years, two lawyers named Turner and Macdonald. Could a basket-weaving major or a social worker, even, have done worse?

You're all right now, Maureen. They almost got you, but don't look back. Get into something productive like television interviewing or photography, or, heavens, newspapering.

1. Why was it necessary to lift the ceiling on union dues?

2. Why does the union need a big new $1 million headquarters in Vancouver, with more staff?

3. What is the purpose of the massive television, radio and newspaper advertising campaign being conducted by the union?

4. Why were lapel buttons issued during the NUPGE vote touting the fact we would be 110,000 strong?

5. Who authorized the expenditure of the huge sum of money for the above?

Mr. Fryer said it himself — "NUPGE membership will give us more clout."

The union needs a government supervised vote on two issues, a re-vote on the NUPGE issue and a vote of non-confidence in the present executive. — E. J. Dalzell, 3334 Rolston Crescent.

They are even arguing about tenses, he said sadly.

The absence of China from these deliberations is another unspoken criticism of the whole concept. One fifth of humanity is not represented at this conference. Eight hundred million people who are in the midst of a massive experiment in human settlements through controlled rural urban migrations.

Despite inevitable flaws that mar any of man's undertakings there is hope too. Landlocked Upper Volta, among the poorest nations on earth, showed a film of how a 250 house settlement was constructed out of pressed and stabilized earth by local people. A simple hand run compressor formed the bricks and the workers put them together with small amounts of concrete. An ingenious process and a local solution.

Yet one cannot spend a day among these infinitely varied diplomats and bureaucrats without being impressed with the urgency of their pleas. The controlled anger of the Dominican delegate who spoke of the hypersensitivity of the rich countries "that almost reaches the panic point" whenever money is mentioned.

Comfortable Way

We do not control the prices of our major export commodities or the price of the products we import from the developed nations," he said.

While we have gone our comfortable insular Canadian way, the world has changed. It hits you between the eyes at the Queen Elizabeth theatre where everybody is electronically frisked and credentials are questioned twice walking the length of the lobby. Military policemen and RCMP officers cover the entrances of major hotels.

Like Gaul the planet is divided into three parts, first, second and third worlds. And it is this third world, analogous to the ancient Gauls, Goths and Visigoths who eventually destroyed Rome, that waits impatiently on our doorstep today.

If Habitat is a failure, resulting in more plagues from the wealthy nations, we will all have lost something. Another chink in the armor of our privilege.

At the start of this conference Habitat Secretary General Enrique Penalosa observed, "Unless progress is made ... the elites will be swept away."

It's high tide in Vancouver this week.

SHAFIQ AL HOUT leader of PLO delegation

The anger is directed squarely at us, the rich nations who talk a lot about altruism, but equivocate when our luxuriant ideologies are pinched by international realities. The anguish is undirected, a human shriek immediately translated into the six official languages of the United Nations.

Sitting in the opulent theatre it is easy to be cynical about what such a conference can accomplish. Eloquent policy statements from a host of poor countries reverberated around an almost empty conference Friday afternoon. A lone reporter pecked away at a typewriter among the elaborate press facilities. The closed circuit television with simultaneous translation gear, connecting the downtown committee played to empty chairs.

Canada has spent $14 million on this U.N. conference, plus another $1 million on Habitat forum, the non-government conference at Jericho beach which has brought together some of the best minds of our generation, not to mention hundreds of organizations that have a bitch about almost anything you could name.

Provisional figures show that 931 delegations from 146 countries are attending. But this figure only scratches the surface. Probably more than 3,500 delegates are here in all, including observers and non-official participants. Delegations range in size from Mexico's 132 to Oman's single representative.

Besides the plenary sessions at the Queen Elizabeth theatre three official committees operate in downtown hotels.

Minimal Coverage

I am somewhat amazed at the minimal coverage the B.C. Government Employees' Union is getting from the media relative to activities within the union. I believe a major confrontation within the union is not too far off because of discontent within the membership in this manner this union operates.

Employees are very distressed with the recent vote to join the National Union of Provincial Government Employees. The executive should have questioned at once why only 18,401 ballots were received out of a possible 32-35,000, especially when whole areas or buildings failed to return ballots. How could membership in the NUPGE be approved with only 10,865 votes in favor of affiliation?

John Fryer says the government wants a confrontation with the union. I submit that the reverse is true. Let's look at some questions you will hear when asked around the legislative buildings:

1. Why was it necessary to lift the ceiling on union dues?

2. Why does the union need a big new $1 million headquarters in Vancouver, with more staff?

3. What is the purpose of the massive television, radio and newspaper advertising campaign being conducted by the union?

4. Why were lapel buttons issued during the NUPGE vote touting the fact we would be 110,000 strong?

5. Who authorized the expenditure of the huge sum of money for the above?

Mr. Fryer said it himself — "NUPGE membership will give us more clout."

Sidewalk Romping

I would like to express my appreciation for the romping of the sidewalk curbs that now exist throughout most of Saanich. This is a most positive action, one which will not only assist people with handicaps, but those with grocery carts and baby carriages, and the elderly people. I now hope other municipalities will follow Saanich's lead.

Saanich has been most co-operative in listening to the suggestion of the handicapped people.

I would also like to take this opportunity to thank Nanaimo for the work they are planning to do in assisting the disadvantaged by ramping their sidewalks. — Ronald Olfrey, Chairman, Handicapped Action Committee, 3525 Government Street.

Land Rip-off

I read with great interest the two articles in Weekend magazine by James Lorimer, Their Land, Your Money, and Your House and Native Land.

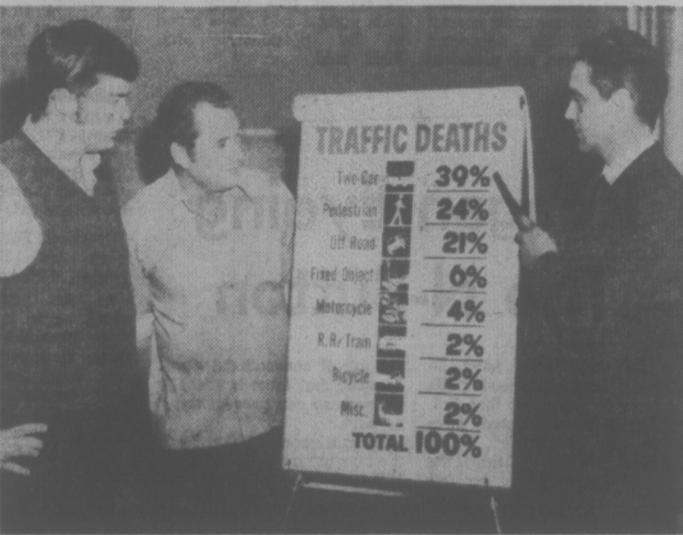

It is amazing to me that we, as a free democracy, would permit the rip-off of one of our most valuable non-renewable natural resources by a very minute section of our society. The federal government is guilty of its part in this rip-off by permitting these few developers to make large profits on which they pay little or no income tax. To allow a five-per-cent depreciation allowance on buildings already constructed is nothing more than amusing when those same buildings are increasing in value far more than the five per cent allowed for depreciation. The writer gives other instances of similar rip-offs.

Even the Habitat conference has presented a platform for the consideration of the participating nations that land, as a non-renewable natural resource, should be taken over by the governments and used in the interests of the people who are, in fact the owners but I note that the Canadian government did not accept this proposal.

The fault lies with us, as we freely elect governments at all levels and as long as greed is the basis of society I can see very little hope for a change. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 301-1701 Cedar Hill X Road.

It is interesting that in professor Symington's rebuttal to the Committee for an Independent Canada (Canadian Studies, May 28), the professor dwelt entirely on the least important yet most emotional features of the local CIC's complaints about the university's hiring policies.

Let me assure the professors involved

"Idiot drivers" need a defensive driving course, says reader.

Defensive Driving

To get away from the general theme of letters you have printed lately from people bitching about the government that nobody admits electing, I would like to make a few comments on another group of people who are in full bloom in this holiday time of year — the idiot driver.

I have been a licensed B.C. driver for over 20 years and really enjoy driving, so much so I drove taxi in Victoria for two years.

I must admit though that the enjoyment is being taken out of driving by a lot of unnecessary situations that arise on the highway these days. Here are just a few I noticed on the trip down from Cowichan Lake yesterday.

1. A car and trailer stopped at the side of the road so the driver could remove his coat. That in itself is not dangerous, but he was half on the travelled portion of the road and within his sight was a proper pull-off spot.

2. Vehicles under powered for the load they were towing or carrying, both convinced they were entitled to one lane each of a two lane uphill stretch of highway. Throw into that at least one driver that can't stand to be behind anyone. Well, I shift into a lower gear and drag back to watch what happens.

These things plus many more make it imperative that drivers learn to drive defensively so that every driver on the road gets to where they are going.

I try to be a defensive driver, but being human I do have lapses in my driving habits. Happily my lapses have never gotten me into an accident, nor have they caused me.

Surprise! I am a woman driver. — Mrs. H. Wells, 1190 Kangaroo Rd. R.R. 6, Victoria.

Why Foreigners?

It is interesting that in professor Symington's rebuttal to the Committee for an Independent Canada (Canadian Studies, May 28), the professor dwelt entirely on the least important yet most emotional features of the local CIC's complaints about the university's hiring policies.

Let me assure the professors involved that the CIC has no intention of trying to send home foreign-born people. In fact, Canadians should be grateful for the infusion of "ready-made academics" that arrived in Canada during the great university expansions of the 1960s.

However, the point missed deliberately or otherwise by Prof. Symington is that we now have a glut of Canadian PhDs on the market, unemployed.

The reverse is also true if you have an overheight trailer and a standard size car you will also be charged $30, $15 for each.

What possible justification can there be for charging $3 more for a utility trailer than a Cadillac? — Heidi L. Fisher, 643 Kelly Road.

Another pertinent point missed was that the hiring of university professors is done through faculty committees and that these bodies may be (and often are) at UVic dominated by professors who prefer to give jobs to those from their own alma mater.

Africans Can Thank Castro for U.S. Switch

By TAD SZULC
New Republic

In a bizarre way, Cuba pushes the U.S. into policies that, were it not for Fidel Castro, might never have been formulated — policies in which successive administrations have taken real, if belated, pride. Cuba was physically attacked and has been vilified by the U.S. for the past 17 years, since Castro came to power in Havana.

And despite all the Cubans have succeeded, from the birth of their revolution, in placing the "Colossus of the North" on the defensive. Cuba has created conditions under which Washington had little choice but to react as it did.

The most recent example of the phenomenon is the "new" policy in southern Africa enunciated by Secretary of State Kissinger during his recent tour. Kissinger would not have announced the "unrelenting opposition" of the U.S. to minority white rule in Rhodesia — and probably would not have made the African trip at all — had Cuban military intervention in Angola not imposed a new reality in that part of the world.

Simultaneously, the danger arose of guerrilla warfare against the Ian Smith regime in Salisbury. Before Angola, the U.S. was satisfied to ignore conditions in southern Africa. That Kissinger's initiatives in Africa, including his promise of expanded American aid to the "Third World," which he made at the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development in Nairobi, are grist for the mill of Ronald Reagan's jingoistic presidential campaign is a separate matter. It is painfully ironic that on one of the few occasions Kissinger has enunciated an enlightened policy — the Panama Canal negotiations are another example — Kissinger has become the target of ultra-conservative political attacks that, given President Ford's own uncertainties, endanger the policy.

Cuba has been affecting U.S. foreign policy since the Eisenhower Administration. While opposing the Cuban revolution with all its might (preparations for the Bay of Pigs invasion had started under Eisenhower in mid-1960), the U.S. decided that the time had suddenly come to pay attention to Latin American economic and social problems. The Act of Bogota — the first serious effort by the U.S. to face change in Latin America — was clearly a response by the Fidel Castro addressing 25th Congress of Soviet Communist Party earlier this year.

Eisenhower Administration to the threat that the Cuban revolution might be "exported" throughout the Hemisphere.

When John Kennedy launched the Alliance for Progress on March 13, 1961 (five weeks before the Bay of Pigs), he took another step to avert the spread of the Cuban revolutionary influence. A massive program compared to the Act of Bogota and earlier American policies in the region, the Alliance was as much an anti-Castro effort as it was an expression of new U.S. idealism.

Significantly, the rhetoric of the day propounded "evolution, not revolution" in Latin America, and the accent was purely reformist. Cynical Latin Americans said, "Gracias, Fidel" whenever a new Alliance for Progress project was inaugurated.

Cuba also affected U.S.-Soviet relations. Many people believe that Castro might not have encouraged the Russians to emplace nuclear missiles on his island in 1962 had the U.S. not carried out the Bay of Pigs adventure a year earlier. As part of his missile crisis settlement, Kennedy made assurances that the U.S. would not repeat invasion attempts.

The long-range effect of the missile crisis was to define, for the first time, the boundaries of Soviet nuclear deployments. The price paid by the U.S. was the renunciation of military action against Cuba.

In 1964, President Johnson undertook negotiations with Panama over the status of the canal. He was responding to wild riots around the Canal Zone. But another of his concerns was that the Cuban revolution might infect Panama if efforts were not made to draft a new treaty. Kissinger, evidently realizing the degree of radicalization in the Caribbean (clearly inspired by the Cuban example) and the emerging Third World support for Panama, resumed the negotiations in 1974.

Today, given the warm relationship between Panama's strong man, Gen. Omar Torrijos, and Castro, the Ford Administration is trying to justify attempts to negotiate a treaty by raising the spectre of guerrilla warfare against the U.S. in Panama. There should be, of course, a more valid public argument for defending U.S. interest in the area, but that's the best that Ford, responding to Reagan's use of the canal issue, could do.

In Africa, the victory of the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA) was facilitated by the well-armed Cuban expeditionary force. The Cuban intervention, in concert with the Soviets, forced a rethinking of American policy in southern Africa.

Prior to Angola, the U.S. was content to look the other way while Smith ran his white racist minority regime. The Administration, for example, made no effort in five years to repeal the Byrd Amendment, which, by allowing U.S. corporations to import chromium from Rhodesia, violated the United Nations embargo on Salisbury. The policy was based on a 1970 conclusion by the White House that white regimes in Africa were safely entrenched, an illusion shattered by the 1974 revolution and the grant of independence to Mozambique and Angola.

Even the Portuguese revolution failed to alter U.S. policies in southern Africa. Only when the Cubans demonstrated that the black liberation movements had a serious ally did Kissinger discover that the U.S. simply could not go on espousing every unpopular cause in Africa. So America's "unrelenting position" to Ian Smith was born. And it's the Africans' turn to say, "Gracias, Fidel."

China Coddles Ethnic Groups

By ROSS H. MUNROE
The Globe and Mail

KUNMING, Yunnan — Sometime in the future all the nationalities in the world — all their customs and their habits — will be universalized ... As communists, that is our ideal. If our ideal is realized, we will hold a grand celebration."

Wang Yi-chung isn't quite sure when the world will become one big commune. It might take several hundred years, perhaps even more than a thousand years.

This minor variation on a 19th century dream by Karl Marx would not be noteworthy except for the setting in which it is enunciated. For while Mr. Wang is proclaiming his version of utopia where everyone is the same, he is surrounded by rows of young people wearing no less than 22 distinctive varieties of colorful costumes symbolically proclaiming the commitment of the People's Republic of China to the flourishing of the different customs and habits of China's minority peoples.

Mr. Wang is head of the Yunnan Institute for Nationalities and his students, waiting in their costumes to greet foreign journalists, represent 20 of the 21 recognized minorities of China's southwestern province of Yunnan and a couple of officially unrecognized minority "peoples" besides. As if National Geographic Magazine has organized a casting call, the students stand in groups to display their costumes as their groups' names are called one by one — Chingpos, Pulangs, Yis, Pals, Hanis, Lisus and so on.

Despite this costume show, the work of the Yunnan Institute for Nationalities is very serious. The function of the institute is to take up-and-coming young Communists who happen to be members of national minority groups and train them for leadership positions among members of their own groups.

This is part of China's sophisticated — and by world standards benevolent — minorities policy which applies to the five per cent or so of its population who are not part of the Han Chinese majority.

More than a quarter century after the Communists took control of China, the authorities have largely done away with "reactionary" leaders of ethnic groups, hill tribes and other minorities whose styles and values didn't fit in with Communism. For years, the emphasis has been on recruiting ambitious and able young people from these minority groups, giving them a thorough Communist political education and then putting them into leadership positions among their own people to ensure that no gulf develops between the state and people who are "different."

Mr. Wang was very straightforward about this:

"The main task of the institute is to train cadres for minority peoples ... The students here take class struggle as their main focus and give priority to a firm and correct political orientation. In other words, politics commands all other subjects."

The future officials seem to be learning their lessons very well. Within days of the fall of Vice-Premier Teng Hsiao-ping and the appointment of Hua Kuo-feng as the new premier, the students were on record as "unanimously" supporting the two Politburo resolutions which accomplished these changes.

They have been chosen carefully, these students. Between 70 and 80 per cent of them are members of the Communist Party or the Communist Youth League. Mr. Wang tells a few of us later. And quite a few of them were cadres (officials) before they came to this school which will teach them how to be even more effective cadres.

None of them came to this school, however, professing any religious belief. This would not be noteworthy either — this is after all a school for Communists — except that a decade ago religious worship at the institute was actually facilitated. In February, 1968, The Globe and Mail's Peking correspondent at the time visited the institute and was told that it boasted a Moslem mosque, a Christian church and a Buddhist prayer room where students could worship if they wished.

Mr. Wang explains what happened. The church, mosque and prayer room "met the needs of the students" until the mid-1960s. Their religious belief arose from a background of oppression and backwardness. But with liberation and enlightenment, "the number of students who had faith in religion dwindled as time went on and by 1965 or 1966 the number came to zero...."

This falling off of religious belief somehow coincided with the cultural revolution which broke out in 1966. The students at the institute wrote big-character posters denouncing the existence of these places of worship and the leadership responded to the students by abolishing these places.

The current lack of religiosity among the student body triggers a set of questions from the visiting journalists. One of the minorities at this school is the Hui group, they note. But Huis are commonly defined as Han Chinese who subscribe to the Islamic religion. Except for their religious beliefs, how else can Huis be defined?

Mr. Wang, the director, says the main distinction is that Huis are people who don't eat pork — dietary habit left over from the days when they practised their religion. Well, does that mean vegetarians could become a recognized nationality within China, a foreigner asks. Mr. Wang adds that the Huis also have their own distinctive wedding and funeral rites.

Above all, the recognized national minority group is a tool of political organization. Recognition means that the state and the Communist Party develop a strategy for dealing with a certain minority. This might be as simple as recruiting a few of the young people into the party and standardizing and romanizing their language or dialect so that a concerted educational and propaganda effort can be launched.

If there is a sufficient geographic concentration of a certain group, the state may establish an "autonomous" county, prefecture or even a region, such as Tibet or Inner Mongolia, for them. Then the authorities will ensure that minority representatives are recruited for all the governing bodies.

In all cases, special attention will be paid to the traditional culture; it will be fostered and glorified yet simultaneously Sinicized and politicized.

Benevolent Policy Weeds Out 'reactionaries'

Moe Mentum On Move Again

The most sought-after man in politics this year is Moe Mentum. The political reporters pay attention to scarcely anyone else. It is a rare Tuesday night that doesn't find Walter Cronkite or John Chancellor analyzing the day's returns to find out which candidates have Moe Mentum on their side, and which candidates Moe has rejected.

It is an odd development in the career of a man who, just a few brief years ago, seemed to have no future in politics, and no one is more astounded by his sudden political fame than Moe himself. Quite by accident, I ran into Moe the other day and was surprised to discover that he had spent three years together in the same high-school Latin class in the 1930's.

* * *

At that time, of course, he answered roll call to the name of Morris Mentumsky and was famous only for his failed translations, one of his better being the rendering of Caesar's "forte dux in aro" as "forty ducks in a row." By the third year, when he translated Horace's "Non egit Mauris Jaculis" as "Don't egg at Maury's ejaculations," the authorities decided that his Latin suffered from a lack of Morris Mentumsky, or Moe Mentum, as the pundits would call it nowadays; and he was transferred to football.

Recalling these days, Moe told me he had been no more successful at football than at Latin until, just a few years ago, he shortened his name to make it easier for television's football voices to pronounce. "I had noticed," he said, "that there were certain football names that got pronounced constantly, simply because they had names that were so much fun to say on television. Names like Mick russell

baker

Tinglehoff and Mercury Morris were always making great plays."

In short, he saw that a player with a name like Morris Mentumsky, which was no fog, at all to pronounce on television, was never going to succeed. He shortened it to Moe Mentum. His triumph was almost instant. How many games has the television watcher seen won these past few years because the victorious side had Moe Mentum?

I remember just last December seeing the Oakland Raiders beat the Washington Redskins at the final instant because of Moe Mentum's last-minute intervention.

Naturally, I did not associate him with the failed Leninist Mentumsky, nor did I anticipate that he was about to launch a brilliant political career.

* * *

Neither did Moe. "I was about to hang up the shoulder pads for another season," he said, "when, in early January, a delegation of political reporters called on me. They said no candidate could win without me and I owed it to the country to get into the campaign."

Moe was reluctant at first. Not because he didn't have a normal American thirst for power. He did. But he was afraid of going up against the toughest political kingmaker of the past two decades, the mighty Charisma.

What does it all mean? Perhaps it is best summed up by the Latin philosopher who said, "Amo mentem sed tempora timet." Or, in Moe's translation, "I'm Moe Mentum," said temper at me, oh!"

Charisma had become such a political power that the reporters had granted him the accolade reserved for the very greatest stars — billing him simply by his last name, in the manner of Garbo, Gable and Karloff. His full name, of course, is Irving Charisma.

"So I said to the reporters," Moe recalled, "I said, You're asking me to go up against Irv Charisma? You think he's going to start courting a jock like Moe Mentum when there's a chance they can get Charisma on their side? You've got to be kidding."

The reporters told Moe that Charisma was all washed up. He had lost the hum on his fast ball, his legs were gone and he could no longer hit the curve on the outside corner. In 1968 and 1972, Charisma had been a joke. This year the candidates wouldn't go near him. He had begun drinking heavily and talking about getting married, which would seal his fate.

* * *

"I don't follow that," said Moe. "No candidate can risk having Charisma without first making sure Mrs. Charisma will go along," the reporters explained. "Even then, all the candidate can say is that he has the Charisma, which sounds like an admission that he has the D.T.'s, particularly in view of Irv Charisma's drinking problem."

And so political triumph came to Moe Mentum simply because there was no one available to accept the glory, and now the most ambitious men in America camp at his door beseeching boons.

What does it all mean? Perhaps it is best summed up by the Latin philosopher who said, "Amo mentem sed tempora timet." Or, in Moe's translation, "I'm Moe Mentum," said temper at me, oh!"

ROWDINESS CLOSES BAR AT HABITAT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Habitat Forum's 204-foot-long bar was closed early Friday night because of rowdiness.

"It's another 'keep out the people' move," one delegate complained when a security guard told the North America's longest bar had closed at 7 p.m., 1½ hours earlier than usual.

BE A BEAUTIFUL LOSER WITH THE NARAN REDUCING PLAN

Your body is like a beautiful high-precision machine. When you over-indulge, sleek lines go to fat. To control weight, you must control your intake. That doesn't mean a starvation diet. Your body needs a variety of foods to provide the important life-giving ingredients. Start following a sensible, healthy diet. And to help you lose some of those extra pounds, eat the exclusive Naran Regime immediately. Naran has formulated a special weight-control regimen. The whole plan is in every package. An exclusive liquid formula, a vitamin supplement, and a comprehensive low calorie weekly food menu. Follow label directions and take as needed.

Naran is a simple easy regimen that can help you lose excess bulky fat quickly before you start on your long-term weight-control diet. If you are not completely satisfied with your first purchase, just return the empty carton for your money back.

Too many young people and rowdiness are the reasons for the new earlier closing time, said Forum producer Al Clapp. After 7 p.m. the place had taken on the atmosphere of a pub.

"That's not what we're here for," he said.

The social centre was designed for non-government organization delegates as a place to relax between meetings with a glass of beer or wine, something to eat and live music.

But the bar has attracted a crowd of local young people who think of the Jericho Beach site as a watering hole, not a forum on the world's housing problems. And many of the bar's would-be patrons have been under age, Clapp said.

"The locale has ruined it," he said. "I'm not sure if it's because of the place being built for the delegates ... and they've got to get been slopped on them from some drunk downtown?"

One latecomer sipped discreetly from a glass of beer. Unnoticed by the early closing, he said he poured his own when the security guards stopped on them from some drunk downtown?

"They should be open later," he said philosophically. "But then, Canadians should learn how to drink without getting rowdy."

Stop Sale Of CANDUs, Barrett Urges

VANCOUVER (CP) — New Democratic Party leader Dave Barrett criticized a large crowd Saturday at Habitat Forum for not becoming more personally involved in the issue of nuclear power. Barrett said he is opposed to nuclear power and the sale of CANDU reactors because there is no guarantee that nuclear power is safe. In any case, he said, it is not needed.

The former B.C. Premier said that it was not enough for him to speak out alone on the issue. He challenged the crowd to do more about the issue than sign a petition, go home and be "ready to be conned again."

The spread of nuclear power has been a key issue at the non-governmental conference that parallels the United Nations conference on human settlements.

Margaret's Bucket Brigade Draws Clean Water Vow

VANCOUVER (CP) — A carnival-like waterbucket parade led by Margaret Trudeau wound up at the Habitat Forum site Sunday with Justice Minister Ron Basford announcing a commitment to clean water in all communities in Canada by 1980.

The justice minister said this was not an empty gesture as there are still some communities without an adequate supply of clean water.

Basford, head of the Canadian delegation at the United Nations Habitat conference here, also said Canada will be suggesting at the Habitat meeting this week that all nations agree to provide clean water in all communities throughout the world by 1980.

After Basford spoke, an open-air crowd of hundreds voted in favor of a resolution calling on governments to supply clean water throughout the world by 1990.

Barbara Ward, British environmentalist who urged the 1980 target in a book she wrote for Habitat, exhorted her listeners to go home after the conference and pick on their local members of Parliament and "bite them in the ear" until they started lobbying for clean water.

The water resolution was part of World Water Day ceremonies at the Habitat forum site on the edge of English Bay. Habitat forum is an unofficial parallel conference to the main UN meeting.

Miss Ward has said that water-borne diseases kill many and rob the energies of those who live in developing countries. She has estimated that $3 billion a year for 10 years would be needed to provide safe drinking water throughout the world.

Keep Nose Out of Air Control, Que. Warned

MONT GABRIEL, Que. — Quebec Liberal MPs urged the federal government Saturday to press ahead with introduction of bilingual air control in Quebec airports and Health Minister Marc Lalonde cautioned the Quebec provincial government to keep its nose out of the controversy.

After a two-day special meeting of 50 ministers and MPs, including Prime Minister Trudeau, a cautious news release was issued saying Quebec Liberals roundly endorsed the government's policy of bilingualism in all federal jurisdictions.

At least a few Liberal MPs were disturbed that the results of the meeting were couched in such broad terms, rather than getting down to particular cases.

A number of Liberal backbenchers are in sympathy with French-language air controllers who have split with their English-language counterparts over the use of French in Quebec airports.

The Quebec government has endorsed the stand of the Quebec controllers, but Lalonde cautioned the provincial administration to stay out of the controversy.

"We do not need the crutch of Quebec to help us defend language rights," Lalonde told reporters after the meeting ended.

The meeting was held in a mountain-top resort in the Laurentians, but Lalonde said the MPs were too busy to take advantage of the sunny weather and the resort's facilities.

However, Trudeau took advantage of the noon break Saturday to take some fancy dives from a 15-foot platform while a group of admirers watched.

While the meeting appeared especially concerned with bilingualism, the statement said other topics such as Montreal, dairy farming and the constitution also were raised.

The MPs underlined Montreal's role as essential to the economic development of the entire province, and listed as priority considerations the social and economic aspects of the port of Montreal and the renovation of housing in the older districts of Montreal, the news release said.

There was only passing reference to the issue of the federal dairy policy which has angered Quebec farmers because of their decreased quota.

Lalonde told reporters Ottawa already has increased subsidies to the farmers, an indication that a meeting this week between the farmers and the government will produce no new financial help.

More Passengers, Fewer Cars on Ferries

Higher ferry rates imposed last week apparently had little effect on travel during the first weekend of June.

Preliminary totals for weekend ferry traffic indicate higher passenger loads but fewer vehicles than for the first weekend of June a year ago.

B.C. Ferries traffic manager Ken Stratford said a breakdown of figures would not be available until Tuesday.

He reiterated, however, that apprehension about a ferry workers' strike had depressed normal ferry passenger traffic until it became clear that ferry crews would not take job action pending resolution of a labor dispute by industrial inquiry commission.

Meanwhile, there has been popular feeling that ferry loadings would be adversely affected by a jump in rates effective June 1, causing most fares to double, some to triple.

Stratford said the trend last week rose to approximately normal traffic levels by the weekend, supporting the ferry authority's contention that higher rates did not have the effect on travel that the threatened work stoppage did.

He said long-range statistics show that 60 per cent of ferry traffic is business-oriented and would take place notwithstanding a hike in ferry rates because businesses do not regard the cost of travel as a factor in making business arrangements.

For the Friday-Monday period, more individual passengers were carried on the major ferry routes than on the same weekend in 1975, with almost as many vehicles, Stratford said.

This could be an indication that fewer people using the ferry system feel it necessary to take their cars with them when travelling to or from the mainland, for a saving of at least $10 per round trip.

For some recreation vehicles the cost per crossing, such as for over-height and car-trailer combinations, has tripled.

B.C. Chamber of Commerce support was given last week to a charge by Vancouver Islanders that coastal residents are penalized unfairly by the rate increases, compared with residents of the interior who get free ferry service.

Ferry routes are an essential part of the provincial highway system, the chamber declared, and there was agreement that the ferry authority should not have to be self-sustaining.

rental units but it is not a surplus."

The Times survey showed the biggest increase in rental units was in unfurnished apartments.

There were 95 available after the June 1 renting period, up from 24 on the same day in 1975. There were 32 furnished apartments, up from 13.

The supply of houses for rent had also improved. There were 40 unfurnished houses available this year, up from nine, and eight furnished houses for rent, up from six.

The number of single rooms was nine, unchanged from last year, while 25 housekeeping rooms were available, up from 10.

Rents were up across the board.

In 1975 the range of rents for a single room was $60 to $100 per month. This year the range had moved up to $70 to $135.

The basic two-bedroom unfurnished apartment unit rented for an average of $190 in 1975. This year the average was $250. Last year 75 per cent of the units were offered at $200 per month or less. Now it is difficult to find a modern two-bedroom apartment under $200.

A modern three-bedroom house is renting for $450 per month, up from a range of $375 to $400 at the same time last year.

The immediate outlook is for further increases in rent, although possibly by more moderate amounts, if the supply of rental units continues to increase.

Budding Biologists At William Head

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

The biology lab is a borrowed hall. The benches are actually tables with shaky folding-metal legs.

To get light for their microscopes the students move nearer the windows.

The atmosphere could easily be that of a seminar at a financially troubled college — the half-dozed male students, hair stylishly long, lounge casually in wooden chairs.

Instructor Bob Pauwels doesn't seem to mind the relaxed air. In fact he too is fairly casual, dressed in workboots, blue jeans and half-unbuttoned sports shirt.

But the difference is Pauwels dresses as he pleases. His students wear government-issue green denim — they are inmates at William Head.

Biology is among a number of courses offered at the federal medium-security institution located about 15 miles from Victoria on a rocky promontory in Metchosin.

"We emphasize the academic program — in particular Grade 12 equivalency (GED) and Grade 10 upgrading," says Peter Murphy, assistant director of occupational development.

When asked if it might seem more logical to give prison inmates vocational training, Murphy said the majority of inmates lack the academic standard to get into trades programs, although there are a number of vocational programs available.

The other Sooke school district teacher working with Pauwels is Reg Miller, who is currently organizing examinations for new arrivals at the prison to determine their level of education.

Right now it is a sort of hit and miss operation.

Inside the biology lab, teacher Pauwels is called away.

The student inmates continue their lab work, delicately slicing sponge specimens with razor blades to make wet-mount slides for cell-structure study under the microscope.

"We don't need rehabilitation, you know. That's what they do for paraplegics," says one inmate.

"Not so," says another. "We're all here for a reason. They want to rehabilitate our anti-social attitudes. You play, you pay."

"It's not that cut and dried — just don't call me socially retarded," says the first.

The program has given inmates some new areas of achievement and pride.

For example they recently formed a student council — which they believe is the first in any Canadian prison. Inmates are allowed to meet privately with as many as 40 students from the academic program in attendance.

At least one problem arose in forming a council: "The members weren't part of the crowd that was involved in student politics back in high school," Pauwels said.

When classes are over for the day and the diligent crew has left, Pauwels asks: "Does it start to make you wonder what the hell these guys are in here for? I still do. Constantly. And I've been teaching here for three years."

Changed PSAC Still His Goal

Gordon Campbell's six year fight to bring "democracy" to the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC) is far from over despite his unsuccessful bid last week to seek the presidency of the union, Canada's third largest.

Weekend Thieves Get Little

Thieves broke into three businesses and a school in Saanich overnight Saturday but all they apparently got for their efforts was about $11 in cash, Saanich police said today.

A sporting goods store and a hobby shop in the Royal Oak Shopping Centre were entered after a window in the front door of both establishments had been smashed.

A police spokesman said a cash register in the hobby shop was opened but there was no money in the till. An unsuccessful attempt was made to pry open the cash register in the sporting goods store.

Lochside elementary school, 1145 Royal Oak, was also broken into. The principal's office was entered, doors opened, but nothing appeared to have been taken.

Police believe those three breakings were connected but not a fourth, reported at Charm Beauty Salon, 5140 Cordova Bay. There, entry was gained through an insecure louvered window. A mask was ransacked and $11 stolen.

All the breakings were discovered Sunday morning.

Campbell, president of the federal taxation department local in Victoria said today he will try to get a national referendum vote to change the PSAC constitution to allow delegates to select their own delegates to the triennial convention.

As it is now convention delegates are sent by the 17 departmental organizations which make up the 170,000-member Alliance.

Campbell said he has been lobbying for six years to get the constitutional changes and that his running for president of the PSAC last week in Winnipeg was mainly an attempt to spotlight his concern.

In the election PSAC vice-president Andrew Stewart won with 181 votes over another vice-president Bill Doherty who got 126. Campbell received only eight votes.

Campbell said that when the PSAC was formed in 1967 it was understood the members would draft the constitution. But that authority was usurped by the departmental organizations, which up to then represented the federal civil servants at the bargaining table.

The members have been defrauded ... literally defrauded ... out of their legal rights," he charged.

He said PSAC members pay two sets of dues — one to the departmental organization they belong to and another to PSAC — and therefore should have two votes.

He compared the situation to having the provincial legislators select the members of the federal parliament without having a general election.

Campbell felt the departmental organizations were redundant.

"Essentially it's a power struggle," he said. "The departmental organizations don't want to relinquish the power they have."

He said it has caused internal divisions within the alliance and has eroded the trust the PSAC should have in its collective bargaining with the federal Treasury Board.

For the fifth year in a row the Duncan Boatland entry won the Oak Bay Tea Party's bathtub race on Sunday.

The driver this year was Steve Frankson.

He finished the 10-mile course in a record time of 27 minutes and 20 seconds, well ahead of the rest of the 17-strong fleet. (Pictures on Page 40).

Brian Roberts placed second. Third was Norm Lambert, driving an entry from Bill Bailey's Garden Centre. Gary Haskell had worked with Roberts on his path.

The Jack Hole Memorial Trophy for the first firefighter to finish went to Gary Smith of the department of national defence's fire department.

The hard luck trophy went to Brian Gibson of the Oak Bay fire department. His bathtub swamped at the start but Gibson persevered, completing the course well behind the others.

This year's race was organized by Oak Bay firefighter Don Lindgren.

There were almost as many people afloat watching the events on Sunday as the solid mass of people that lined the Willows beach for the three-hour program.

They were there in a variety of craft ranging from yachts and pleasure cruisers to rowboats and rafts.

Al Scott made two parallel flights, making a free drop into the water close to the beach on his second run. Four members of the Victoria Skydiving Club, led by Roger Foley, put on two shows, as did the Longview Radio Modelers Club.

Youth Faces Break-in Charge

An 18-year-old Victoria youth is expected to appear in provincial court later today in connection with an overnight break-in at Goodwill Bottling.

Police investigating an audible burglar alarm at the company at 35 Erie discovered the suspect outside the building with "a large number of quarters in his pocket," a police spokesman said.

He enters with dignified expressions of pleasure. First she greets Dick as if they had been parted for days rather than for a few minutes. Then she makes her manners to us.

She brings him a handful of dry cat food from the bag left when our tough little Cleo departed this world. For large dogs of a working breed, Labradors are moderate eaters. Seal disposes of the treat de-

GOOD PICKINGS AT BERRY FARMS

For farmers and consumers alike, the "pick-your-own" concept seems to be flourishing in Greater Victoria.

The idea spread across the water from Lower Mainland berry growers, has taken firm root here and is now being cultivated by the provincial department of agriculture.

A press release from the department says 21 local farmers in this area are offering their vegetables, fruit and berries on a pick-your-own basis this summer — or already picked, for the less energetically inclined.

Most of the producers are located on the Saanich Peninsula, a department spokesman said today.

A free brochure listing where they are and the crops available can be obtained by writing to the publications office of the B.C. department of agriculture, or by phoning 387-5121, local 238.

In the news release, Agriculture Minister Don Phillips lyrically proclaims the advantages of this type of marketing:

"Picking your own produce is an ideal outing in the fresh country atmosphere for most city families while getting fresh, flavorful and high quality foodstuffs at the same time."

McKinnon said he heard at the weekend of a boycott being organized in Portland claiming to have 5,000 supporters who will not visit Canada or purchase Canadian products until the government halts the slaughter of baby harp seals off Labrador and Newfoundland.

Lawyer Roger Tilbury, of Portland, indicated the boycott involves supporters other than in the immediate Portland area, people who have signed pledges opposing the Canadian seal policy.

Tilbury wrote to the Times:

"Please do not underestimate the strength of our resolve. We mean to keep our pledge. We will not return to your lovely country until and unless your government does decide to protect these beautiful animals. We feel they have a right to live, too."

Copies went to Prime Minister Trudeau and Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc.

McKinnon said he would ask LeBlanc what representations he had received on this subject, but he expressed some doubt about the effectiveness of a boycott on tourist travel.

"I don't know if that boycott is going to amount to much. The difference in money value is going to have more effect on tourist travel than anything else," the member said.

In a recent visit to northern states he said he was amazed at the lower cost of food and accommodation compared with prices at home.

He suggested Americans are more conscious of what he called the false value of Canadian money, which is being exchanged at about 4 per cent premium over the U.S. dollar.

Another disadvantage of boycott action at this time is that the annual seal hunt is ended, McKinnon said.

The member noted the Maritime people have a much different attitude toward sealing than people in other parts of Canada. To some families on marginal income, participation in the seal hunt represents a significant part of their subsistence and may be the only time of the year they get off welfare or unemployment insurance.

"They are very keen about it in Newfoundland," he said.

McKinnon said he would ask LeBlanc what he did with all possible speed.

While Dick told us about his bear, his hand strayed to Seal's head. As a now-fogless couple, we envied him a loyalty which is denied us.

We live at the edge of a highway that is a death-trap for dogs and cats. Perhaps some year this will change.

The much-discussed bypass could become a reality instead of the pie-in-the-sky hope it has been to Up-Islanders these many years. Then we'll feel free to have a dog again.

A Labrador, naturally. If you've ever owned, or been owned by, a Lab or Seal's, there's no other breed that exerts quite the same appeal.

Certainly Dick's Seal, who is everything that a Lab should be, offers potent persuasions. After her visits, there's a momentary sense of an element missing from our lives. It's the nuisance and blessing combined which comes with having a big black Lab around the place.

liberately, with thank-you waves of tail.

She then chooses a knee on which to rest her chin. Win's or mine, but usually Dick's — and lapses into a catnap reverie.

Neither is too finely tuned an intelligence. It is a shock to the ego, to discover that your dog is smarter than his master.

I suppose one reason why Seal remains a welcome guest is because her bold presence, and the feel of her broad, intelligent head under a casually dropped hand, bring memories of Paddy, our first black Lab.

He was just such a dog as Seal: our faithful friend, and our children's trustworthy companion when they were small. He had the same functional tail, broad at the base and tapering, like an otter's, which could rudder him around in his own length when he made a water retrieve. His head and his feet were hauntingly the same.

We would be walking and talking, doggo sedate on his leash at my side. He would wait until the conversation engaged me to the point where my vigilance relaxed. Then he would drop back an inch, increasing the slack in his leash.

He would then shuck the slip-collar over his ears.

Rarely enough to underscore the virtues of the breed, a bad Lab does turn up. And having achieved his free-away from those parts, which it did with all possible speed.

While Dick told us about his bear, his hand strayed to Seal's head. As a now-fogless couple, we envied him a loyalty which is denied us.

Hollywood celebrities such as Jane Fonda, Jack Lemmon, Robert Redford and Paul Newman have stood up against nuclear energy. Singers John Denver and Linda Ronstadt staged benefit concerts that among other things raised $100,000 to help the anti-nuclear campaign.

The anti-nuclear "hero" is consumer advocate Ralph Nader, who has said he wants to shut down nuclear power in the nation "even if it means going back to candles" for light.

The anti-nukes have stressed the fear of atomic power plant accidents, the dangers of handling wastes that stay radioactive for thousands of years, and the spread of atomic weapons they say is inevitable from the plutonium produced by an increasing number of atomic power plants.

Instead of nuclear power its critics preach hydro-electric, wind and geothermal power. Their favorite future energy source is the sun, which they say will provide limitless light and heat without polluting the air or water.

The pro-nukes have gone beyond rebuttals, questioning the economics and even the motives of their antagonists.

They point out that Californians cannot burn coal in certain areas because of smog restrictions. They note that Congress has taken away their right to burn oil and natural gas by making these scarce fuels illegal sources of electricity in the future. They argue there is no hydro power left because there are no dams left.

Frank G. Zarb said one day last week, "that if it stops nuclear energy it needs somewhere between 7 and 15 new Kaiparonites in the next 20 years to keep the lights turned on."

Kaiparonites was the proposed 3-million-kilowatt electric plant to be built by western coal and built in Utah to transmit electric power to California that was abandoned by its builders because of environmental opposition earlier this year.

The AEC never spelled out the sequence of death, because the third man could not be removed from the reactor room for six days. His body was so badly burned and decomposed by radiation that the AEC did not want relatives to know which of the three was dead. For the same reason, the Energy Research and Development Administration still refuses to say which man was removed last.

Nuclear critics still talk of the accident because of the horror associated with it. They imply the specter of a mushroom cloud behind it, even though there was none and could be none in any nuclear power plant accident.

The pro-nukes use the accident of the way nuclear safety is practiced today. They point out that only the three men working on the reactor died, that the concrete used to enclose the reactor confined the released radioactivity to a small area.

They also say the accident taught the nuclear profession a lesson. Automatic alarms are built into reactors today to counter the mishandling of control rods. Duplicate devices prevent control-rod mistakes from doing damage.

There have been other nuclear power plant accidents, none fatal.

McKinley was a Navy technician and Byrnes and Legg Army technicians working on an experimental test reactor at Idaho Falls, Idaho. Two of them were on top of the stainless steel reactor vessel resembling a control rod when the third mistakenly removed the rod, which acts to slow the chain reaction and keep the atomic fissions at a lower rate.

Arizona, Utah, New Mexico, Nevada and Colorado have all implied an unwillingness to burn coal inside their borders and ship electricity to California.

"I've told California," Federal Energy Administrator

No longer kept in check, the chain reaction took off in what an Atomic Energy Commission safety board later described as a "nuclear excursion." The temperature inside the reactor vessel skyrocketed, tons of water around the nuclear core flashed instantly to superheated steam and pressures inside the vessel soared to as much as 10,000 pounds per square inch.

The 200-ton reactor vessel was torn off the floor, hammering the two men on top of the vessel into the concrete ceiling and killing them instantly. Steam at temperatures of more than 1,000 degrees exploded into the room, bearing huge chunks of radioactive fuel with it. The third man lived for two hours, then died of what the REC said were head injuries.

The AEC never spelled out the sequence of death, because the third man could not be removed from the reactor room for six days. His body was so badly burned and decomposed by radiation that the AEC did not want relatives to know which of the three was dead. For the same reason, the Energy Research and Development Administration still refuses to say which man was removed last.

They also say the accident taught the nuclear profession a lesson. Automatic alarms are built into reactors today to counter the mishandling of control rods. Duplicate devices prevent control-rod mistakes from doing damage.

There have been other nuclear power plant accidents, none fatal.

In 1952, a technician at an experimental reactor in the Canadian village of Chalk River opened the wrong set of valves, causing the control rods to rise out of position and destroying the core. Three years later, a test reactor at Idaho Falls suffered a partial meltdown of its core but quick thinking by attending scientists minimized the damage.

Ten years ago the Fermi plant of Detroit Edison Co. had a partial fuel meltdown when a safety device jammed and blocked cooling water from a part of the core. It took years to undo the damage and $50 million to fix it. A similar accident took place in 1969 in a reactor in a rock-encrusted cavern outside Lucens, Switzerland. The cavern is now a storage bin for radioactive waste.

Even a close "no" vote could put a crimp in nuclear plans, because banks would be reluctant to loan money for nuclear construction if other states follow California's example.

The worst accident occurred in 1957, when up to 11 tons of uranium fuel caught fire in a reactor in Windscale, England. The fire raged out of control for the better part of a day, spreading radioactive smoke 30 miles away.

Fourteen workers were "contaminated" by the fallout, but the worst damage was economic. Radioactive iodine fell onto cow pastures and got into the milk the cows produced in an area 30 miles long and 10 miles wide. As much as $20 million worth of milk had to be destroyed because of the accident.

Minor mishaps have plagued the nuclear power industry, which has grown to where 58 plants are generating electricity in the United States last year, closing them for as long as a month. Six other plants were closed last year by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the federal agency that regulates all U.S. nuclear facilities, to repair nagging ills.

All three had joined the quasi-religious Creative Initiative Foundation, a decision they took secretly a year before they announced their fears over nuclear safety.

The debate over safety has often been hypothetical, a "what if" kind of argument that may never end. The California debate has made the safety issue more intense, especially since the resignations last year of three engineers who had worked for General Electric Co., the second biggest builder of nuclear power plants in the world.

One engineer, Dale Bridenbaugh, said he decided to quit when he looked into a swimming pool where stored nuclear fuel rods gave off an eerie, blue glow. He said he suddenly realized he'd be dead if the water weren't shielding him from the radiation. A second engineer, Richard Miner, said his decision came during a business trip to Japan when a hotel bellhop "stepped back" from him when he found out he worked in the nuclear power industry.

"I want you to know," former Nuclear Regulatory Commission Chairman William B. Anders said when he heard Miner's reason for quitting, "that I make decisions based on more than the reactions of a Japanese bellhop."

A Mint to Be Made in Old Beatle Albums

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — That old $3.95 Beatle album gathering dust in someone's record collection might be worth hundreds.

Even a 98-cent copy of "Please Please Me" might fetch $140, if the record is in mint condition with the VJ logo in black and Beatles misspelled on the label, says collector Tom Meenach.

Memorabilia merchants say the British rock group is still big business, even though the Beatles haven't performed in public for 10 years.

"It's starting to turn into a full-time thing," said Mitchell McGahey, owner of a company specializing in old Beatles records. "As much stuff as I can get, I can sell. I started TTR (Ticket to Ryde Ltd.), a year ago and now I can't keep up."

The business has grossed $38,000 since October, he said.

"Most of the time it's the label or album cover that's worth the money," said McGahey. "The records themselves usually are worth only a few dollars."

McGahey's Beatle discography, a 33-page book in its ninth edition, lists such esoterica as The Beatles and Frank Ifield album, which sells for $300.

Meenach and McGahey displayed their wares during the weekend for the crowd of curious onlookers at the Spokane Opera House who posed over Beatle buttons, posters, a Beatle thermos bottle, Beatles bubble-gum cards and a gold copy of Yesterday encased in glass with a plaque commemorating its presentation to Beatle John Lennon.

Stars Shining at Campaign Time

VISALIA, Calif. — "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington 1946, Mr. Reagan Goes to Washington 1976," read the 60-foot banner.

In the same stuttering voice, that film's star, James Stewart, introduces his longtime friend — former actor, former California governor and Republican presidential candidate, Ronald Reagan.

"I'm working for Reagan because he's my friend," Stewart said. "But more than that, I'm working for Reagan because he is a man who is showing genuine concern for the security and well-being of the United States."

A few days later to the south of this farming centre, the spotlight focused on actress Candice Bergen.

"I'm responding to Jerry Brown, and you should respond to Jerry Brown, and together we will elect him president."

It's election time in California, where the stars come out and shine for the candidates.

President Ford is introduced

Glenn Ford telephones voters from the president's headquarters in Los Angeles as TV cameras film for the evening news.

California politics this year involve some estranged bedfellows.

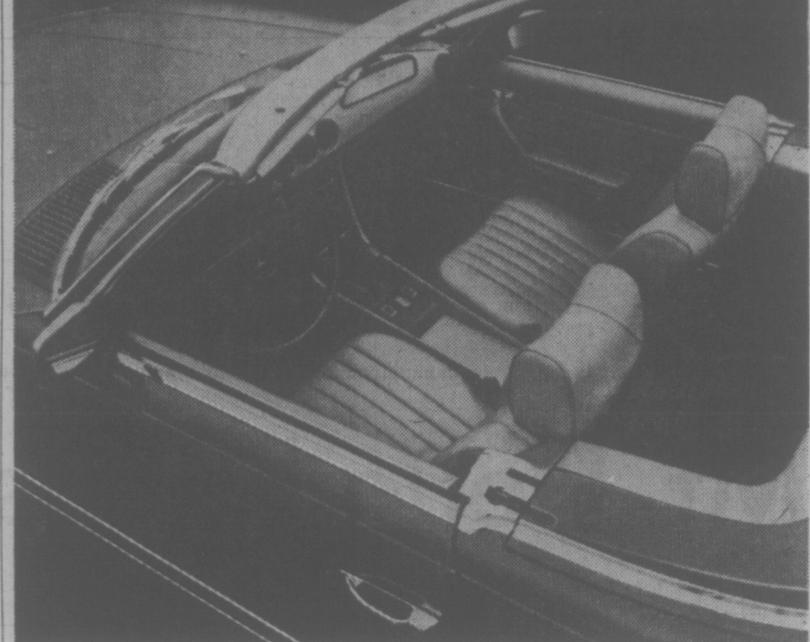

Sonny Bono is stumping for Ford. Greg Allman, the singer Cher Bono married after her divorce from Sonny, is giving concerts and making appearances for Democratic presidential hopeful Jimmy Carter.

Reagan, who starred in 51 movies over a 20-year Hollywood career, has the largest stable of stars to tout in this campaign — all personal friends.

One day it is John Wayne on the podium, introducing "Mr. President, Ronald Reagan."

Another day it is Andy Devine, Cesar Romero, Robert Stack, Ken Curtis, Lloyd Nolan.

DIVORCE TIME?

PONT-AU-PRINCE — Actor Richard Burton arrived here on the weekend to get a divorce from Elizabeth Taylor, the Haitian office of tourism and information said. He arrived with an unidentified woman. Miss Taylor and Burton were first married in 1964.

BALTIMORE — Joe Deckrit, a 56-year-old beer truck helper, outgobbled 25 challengers to win his third consecutive Polack Johnny's Polish sausage eating contest. Deckrit, who weighs 300 pounds, ate 20 sausages in an hour. After the victory, Deckrit said he was ready for dessert.

SHOW LOW, Ariz. — Robert Pittman won a seat on city council in this small town in rural eastern Arizona by drawing the deuce of clubs on the third try in a card game at noon at the rodeo grounds. To settle a tie between Pittman and Mayor David Foil in city council elections last month, the mountain-area community of about 2,100 re-enacted an 1876 card game that gave the town its name — Show Low. Council decided that in bicentennial year, it would be appropriate to settle the election by drawing lots as allowed under Arizona law, rather than using the traditional runoff election method. So, precisely at noon, Foil and Pittman started drawing from the top of the deck. Pittman was the first one to draw the deuce of clubs and won the seat.

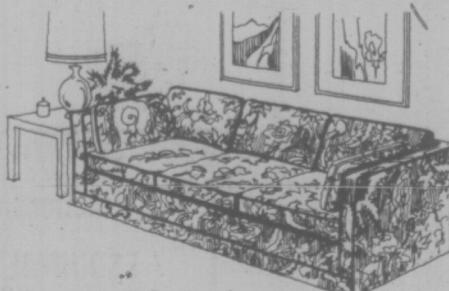

LUMSFORD, Sask. — Beatrice Trew, one of the founding members of the CCF government of Saskatchewan, has been identified as the victim of an automobile accident. Mrs. Trew, a member of the legislature for Maple Creek in the 1944-48 first CCF government, was killed when the car she was operating collided with a grader on a gravel road near Lumsford, 75 miles northwest of Swift Current.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Sally Rand, still nimble and trim at 72, says age hasn't dulled her appreciation of men — especially the older ones. "I like the old men best," she said. "They always give you what the young ones promise."

BANGKOK — There was something unusual about Anand Tasanapinyo's wedding picture when it appeared in a Thai newspaper. There were two girls in it. Tasanapinyo, a young Thai millionaire, decided to marry both girls in a joint ceremony in order not to offend either of them. "This is the best way to settle the conflict of love between my two girl-friends over me," Tasanapinyo said. "Marry them both at the same time and sleep in the same bed. I think it is very fair to both." Bigamy is legal in Thailand.

AN INSIGHT INTO MISERY

ST. PETER PORT, Guernsey — Businessman David James, who had asked for advice on how to spend $1.75 million, says he has received 8,000 letters in one month and new insight into human crankiness and misery.

James, 46, who made a fortune from office equipment before retiring to the Channel Isles, had asked the public to help him in an interview last month with the London newspaper Daily Mirror.

He said he has received appeals to bankroll a search for Inca gold in Peru and to build a fish-shaped submarine to lure the Loch Ness monster into a false sense of security.

A man in Malta asked for cash to buy a wig for his wife and a piano for himself.

A porter at London's Ritz Hotel asked for a cigar.

James, who has not yet made up his mind on how to distribute his money, said he peered "into the well of human misery" when the deluge of letters from tenants without money for rent, from people with household bills or without food to give their hungry children.

He said one project that stuck in his mind was for a campaign to occupy all income tax offices and arrest the tax collectors.

James said he left England to live in Guernsey — where taxes are low — because he was depressed by having to apologize for making a profit.

Suns Couldn't Make Old Celts Wilt

PHOENIX (AP) — The grim, determined Boston Celtics, winners of more league championships than any team in the 30-year history of the National Basketball Association, captured their 13th title in the last 20 years Sunday, downing Phoenix Suns 87-80.

Coach Tom Heinsohn, drenched with perspiration and champagne in the joyous Celtics locker room, called it a "total team effort, a fantastic job."

"We gutted it out all season," added Heinsohn, savoring his 10th championship—eight as a player and two as a coach—with the Celtics.

"We had trouble all season offensively because of the makeup of our team," said Heinsohn, referring to Boston's age and lack of depth.

In the final series against the longshot Suns, Boston's running game—so often a vital cog in the past—was missing to a great extent because of a painful foot injury to captain John Havlicek.

So Boston was forced to change its offensive game somewhat and design its defense to cope with the Sun's slowdown pattern of play.

And perhaps because of their experience, the Celtics were able to adjust and overcome the upstart Suns, who had begun the 10-game playoffs as the longest shot in the field of 10. But fitness helped them score upset victories over Seattle Supersonics and Golden State Warriors in preliminary rounds.

The Celtics won the first two games of the series at Boston Garden and there was much talk of a possible four-game sweep in the best-of-seven series which began May 23.

But the Suns bounced back with two victories at home. Those games were followed by the historic fifth game at Boston, where the Celtics outlasted the Suns 128-126 in a record three overtimes.

It was a game which figured to take a heavy toll on the older Celtics, whose roster includes Havlicek and Don Nelson, both 36, and Paul Silas, 32. Instead, it was the Suns who wilted.

They scored only 33 points in the first half Sunday, including just 13 in the second quarter, and fell behind 33-33.

Scott climaxed his first season with the Celtics after three full years with Phoenix with 25 points, 11 rebounds, five steals and three assists. Cowens had 21 points and 17 rebounds.

White, voted the most valuable player in the playoffs, finished with 15 points for a team-high total of 130 in the series. Havlicek had 10 points and became the third-leading scorer in NBA playoff history with 3,611.

Alvan Adams, the NBA's rookie of the year, paced the Suns with 20 points and wound up with a series-high 138. Ricky Sobers, Phoenix's other starting rookie, scored 19, and Paul Westphal, the player traded by Boston for Scott a year ago, had 14.

For winning and succeeding the Golden State Warriors as NBA champions, the Celtics received a total of $250,500 from the playoff pool. Phoenix collected $185,500.

Mt. Doug Keeps Title

BURNABY — It's what you can do under pressure that counts most in athletics. And for June Bracks of Mt. Douglas High School that performance came Saturday.

Bracks jumped the farthest she has ever jumped, 5.38 metres, for a second-place finish in the girls' long jump in the British Columbia High School Track and Field Championships at Swangard Stadium. And it was that leap that gave Bracks a second-place finish and Mt. Douglas eight points and a second successive provincial championship.

Mt. Doug had been trailing Burnaby by half a point at that time and, as the long jump was the final event of the day, the points were vital.

Mt. Doug finished with 136 points to 128½ for Burnaby Central, Claremont of Victoria, and Wundermere of Vancouver shared third place with 52 points.

Actually, the boys' high jump may have been the crucial event for Mt. Doug because it was a first-place finish by Matt Nyhof and a third place by teammate John Philip which put Mt. Doug in position to go ahead, depending on Bracks, of course.

Debbie Scott of Claremont also took honors back to the Island. She set a record of 4:34.26 for the 1,500 metres, and she also won the girls' 3,000 metres, a new event this year, with an impressive time of 9:52.65. For those performances she was named the outstanding female athlete.

"We started out well winning both our 4x100 relays; then just went on there," said coach Stan Gill after guiding the Rams to their fourth provincial championship. Central also has won four B.C. titles.

Mt. Douglas won seven events, including three of four relays, and in winning the girls' 4x400-metre relay set a new Canadian inter-scholastic record. The Rams' time of three minutes, 54.23 seconds broke Burnaby Central's mark of 3:55.2 set in 1971. Team members were Debbie Campbell, Terry Crocker, Gail Thompson and Wendy Davies.

Three other meet records were established.

Ann Crump, of Eric Hamber in Vancouver completed the girls' 100-metre hurdles in a meet-record time of 14.44 seconds, just one-tenth of a second off the Canadian inter-scholastic mark. The versatile Crump, who finished second in the pentathlon at the recent Canadian Olympic trials, also placed third in the shot put, fifth in the long jump and eighth in the high jump.

West Vancouver's Lloyd Guss set a mark of 35.22 seconds in the 400 hurdles.

Peter Favell of Point Grey, who won the 800 and 1,500-metre events, won the outstanding male award for his 1:54.6 performance in the 800, which was just shy of the record — 1:53.85 set last year by Tom Griffin of Mt. Douglas.

Windermere's Zvonko Stankovic, who won the 100 and 200-metre sprints, was second in the 400 and anchored two relay teams, was named the meet's most inspirational performer for his winning performance in the 200. He ran the 100 in 11.21 seconds and the 200 in 22.46 to finish ahead of Derry Donaldson of Mount Douglas, who finished in 11.23 and 22.53. Al Sheridan of Claremont won the 110-metre hurdles. Friday Bob Noble of Esquimalt won the boys' 3,000 metres.

MACS BACK IN LEAD, BUT PROTEST DENIED

RICHMOND — Victoria McDonald's enjoyed far greater success on the floor Saturday than they did in an argument with the Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League's protest committee.

The Bill Munroe-coached Bakers moved back into first place by breezing to a 19-9 victory over the cellar-dwelling Richmond Roadrunners.

But McDonalds had to content with a half-loss. Victoria's protest over a referee's failure to proceed with overtime in a game at Esquimalt Sports Centre last week was rejected by the league.

BOXLA GAME HALTED WHEN PLAYERS BRAWL

A bench-clearing brawl put an early end to an interlocking junior 'B' lacrosse game in Richmond Sunday.

The referee called a halt to the game at 10:32 of the third period when players from Richmond and Juan de Fuca left their benches. Richmond held a commanding 14-4 lead over their Vancouver Island League rivals when the brawl erupted.

League officials plan to fully investigate the rough encounter.

As a result, Macs' 11-1 tie with Burnaby Cablevision will stand. There was one other draw, also involving Burnaby, earlier in the season.

Although Victoria's protest was rejected, McDonalds managed to stir the league executive into making a ruling on overtime games. The league's constitution doesn't cover overtime.

Now it does. Commissioner Harry Woolley said overtime will be played in future league and playoff games.

The two tie games, however, will stand.

At the same time, Woolley also announced that the league's first all-star game will be played July 1 in New Westminster between the 1975 champion Burnaby squad and an all-star club selected for the other teams.

On the floor, McDonalds had little trouble with Richmond. Scoring leader Kevin Alexander sparked the assault by scoring four goals and five assists to run his individual point total to 75 in 10 games.

Bob Cool and Tei Labb each added three while Steve Buckley with a pair, Scott Browning, Kevin Kennedy, Ken King, Steve Henburn, Mike Hardy, Mike Bryson and John Entzminger completed Victoria's total.

Joe Marelli scored twice for Richmond while Gord Quilty, Dave Edinger, Rico Bellusci, John Gaufrida, Lindsay Day, Davinder Dill, Scott Smith and Gary Lindsay each one aneice.

McDonald's out-shot the Runners 74-42.

Burnaby was required to play overtime Sunday and the Cables acted as if they were old hands at the extra-time business. They scored nine goals in overtime at Burnaby to overwhelm Cowichan Hawks and move into a second-consecutive tie with New Westminster.

John Kioochi fired five goals for the Cables and Eric Otterson notched five tallies for the Hawks.

SOOKE GRABS 2-0 VERDICT AFTER LOSING IN SLUGFEST

You can't say Stuffy McGinnis' Major Men's Softball League teams don't offer variety.

Central Park customers were treated to 19 runs, 21 hits (including three home runs), six errors and a parade of six pitchers as Ingram Hotel outlasted Sooke Merchants 11-8 in the first half of a Sunday afternoon double-header.

Ron Fedosenko of Sooke and Ingram's Randy Jackson, two of the six pitchers used in the opener, came back in the second game to turn things around. Each allowed only three hits as Sooke squared accounts with a 2-2 victory.

Kubiceks Snap Losing Streak

Clutch hitting by Randy Price powered Kubiceks to a 9-8, extra-innings victory over Gorge Hotel and their first triumph in the Senior Amateur Baseball League this season.

Gorge extended Kubiceks winless run to five by defeating the cellar-dwellers 3-1 on Mike Squire's two-run homer in the first half of Sunday's doubleheader at Lambrick Park.

Trailing 8-1 at one stage, Kubiceks tied the second game with a three-run burst in the seventh. Dave Graas doubled with two out and scored the winning run in the ninth when Price bounded a one-hop shot off the left-centre field fence.

It was Price's fifth run-batted-in as he went three-for-four at the plate. Graas, who banged out two doubles in the opener, went two-for-four in the second game and scored three runs.

JERRY McGEE
... couldn't hold lead

At Last, Kite Flies High

PHILADELPHIA (AP) —

In his fourth full season on the pro golf tour, Tom Kite is a winner at last. He turned back Terry Diehl with a winning par on the fifth hole of sudden death to take the title and $40,000-first prize Sunday in the Bicentennial golf tournament. Then, since he'd played almost an hour in front of the other contenders, he had to sit and wait. The 26-year-old Kite had to watch from the sidelines as Diehl tied his score and two others—Jerry Pate and Larry Nelson—moved ahead of him.

Pate, however, finished bogey-bogey to drop out of a playoff spot and—Nelson played his two holes bogey-double bogey.

In the playoff, Kite managed to halve the first hole with a bogey.

Kite pushed his earnings for the season to $100,224 after collecting the $40,000 first prize in this event, formerly known as the Philadelphia Classic.

At one time or another in the final round, nine different players—Diehl, Kite, Ken Still, Larry Nelson, Jerry Pate, Tom Purtzer, Jerry McGee, Masters champ Ray Floyd and Grier Jones—all led or shared the lead.

Pate's closing 70 left him one shot out of the playoff and third alone at 278. Nelson, with a 71, dropped back into a tie at 279 with Floyd and McGee. Floyd had a last-round 70, McGee 71.

George Knudson of Toronto shot a final-round 77 for a 93 total and took home $415.

Judy Star of Island Track Meet

VICTORIA TIMES, MONDAY, JUNE 7, 1976

17

Can there be any doubt about Judy Tobacco inheriting some of dad's talents?

For the second straight meet, the daughter of former Olympic runner Terry Tobacco was equally impressive in the Island meet Saturday at Centennial Stadium.

She won three events, including a record-setting 200 metres, and helped Cedar Hill's 4x100 girls relay team to victory.

In addition to her record of 25.4 seconds in the 200, Judy won the 400 in 60.4 seconds and took the high jump with a leap of 1.55 metres.

Her efforts weren't enough to get Cedar Hill into the title bracket.

Oak Bay, sparked by its strong boys' track team, captured the overall team championship with 186 points, 51 more than the Bays managed last year in finishing second to Arbutus.

Oak Bay topped both the midget and junior boys' aggregate totals while Langdowne won the midget girls' title and Arbutus took junior girls' honors.

Shamrocks Bog Down In the Marsh System

COQUITLAM — Now that Bob Marsh has had a chance to work on Coquitlam's Western Lacrosse Association team, the Adanacs may be ready to turn things around.

Winners of only two of their first eight games, the Adanacs came up big Saturday night by scoring a 12-10, home-floor decision over the leading Victoria Shamrocks.

It was only the second loss in 10 starts for the Nirmal Dillon-coached Rocks.

Marsh, who took over coaching reins last week, said "things are starting to come around."

Still, Marsh needed a big effort from goaltender Greg Thomas. The netminder came up with one of his biggest games of the season in order to cool off the high-powered Victoria attack.

Shamrocks out-shot Adanacs 57-45. Thomas came up with numerous fine stops.

Jim Aitchison provided Coquitlam's spark by scoring four goals while clubmate Mike Mitzel added a pair. Ron MacNeil and Dan Green each scored twice for the Shamrocks.

Shamrocks also made news off the floor.

Victoria president Chris Randall confirmed a one-game trade with Nanaimo Timbersmen.

Rutledge Leads By Four Strokes

VANCOUVER — Jim Rutledge, 17-year-old grade 11 student at Oak Bay, took a commanding four-stroke lead into today's second and final round of the British Columbia high school golf championship.

The two-time winner of the Victoria junior title fired a one-over-par 73 in Saturday's opening round to finish four strokes ahead of four rivals — Brian Ecclestone of Handsworth, Scott Fitzsimmons of Magee, Dan Walker of Castlegar and Andy Girling of Lord Byng.

PROTEST OFF ON FERRIES

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Concerned Citizens of the Sunshine Coast group called off demonstrations scheduled for Sunday at Horseshoe Bay and Langdale ferry terminals. The protest was cancelled Saturday until the provincial cabinet considers a demand that Sunshine Coast residents get some relief on new doubled-ferry rates which came into effect June 1.

Passenger fares doubled to $4 and the return automobile fare between Langdale and Horseshoe Bay increased to $10 from $6.

Barrett Bumps Lead

VANCOUVER (CP) — The outcome of Thursday's Vancouver East provincial election was clear on election night, but former premier Dave Barrett's lead grew when 43 affidavits were counted.

Returning officer Jack Holroyd said Sunday that the New Democratic Party's Barrett got 32 votes, Ralph Long of Social Credit nine and Liberal Jim Selmens two.

Final result are: Barrett, 19,983; Long, 7,025; Siemens, 1,041; Progressive Conservative Les Lavers, 214; Independents Dave Bader, 104 and Anne Boylan, 59; and Al Levinson, North American Labor Party, 40.

Barrett is expected to be able to take his legislative seat by June 19.

Vancouver Transit Changes

Aim to Better Busy Routes

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Hydro is to make major changes in its transit services in the Lower Mainland. A few outlying services will be cut back but the main impact will be to increase frequency on busy routes and to make schedules more convenient.

Vic Sharman, manager of operations planning with Hydro's transportation group, announced that the bulk of changes will take effect July 23.

He said that since 1971, B.C. Hydro has expanded its bus and trolley coach fleet serving the Lower Mainland from 520 diesel buses and trolley coaches to the present 895 vehicles.

The extra buses have been needed in a major expansion which has carried B.C. Hydro beyond the boundaries inherited from its predecessor, B.C. Electric Co.

Transit operations now reach south of the Fraser River to serve Langley, Surrey and Delta. One bus run covers 35 route miles to link White Rock with Vancouver. North of the river, service extends east as far as Port Coquitlam.

Sharman said this expansion, performed at the direction of the B.C. Bureau of Transit, was done in haste and a reorganization was required.

One key change will be a fourfold increase in service to Vancouver International Airport, which will be linked by new through services to White Rock and Coquitlam.

The airport-Coquitlam service will intersect with north-south transit routes to place a large part of the population within easy reach of the air terminal.

But service between Vancouver and Surrey will be strengthened and accelerated. Service on the key Kingsway artery between downtown Vancouver and Burnaby metro town centre is being stepped up.

Bus service at off-peak hours on Kingsway will be increased from 10 minutes to 7½ minutes and peak frequency will be a bus every three minutes.

In total there will be an increase in service, calling for 22 extra drivers.

On the north shore of Burrard Inlet a new direct service is being introduced between Deep Cove and Park Royal, where it will connect with West Vancouver's bus system.

To be known as the North Shore cross-town service, the new bus route will speed journey's between West Vancouver and North Vancouver. It also will connect with the new Burrard Inlet ferry service when this comes into operation in the fall.

Mercenaries

On Trial As Example

LUANDA (UPI) — A U.S. attorney today pressed for his first meeting with three American mercenaries about to go on trial for their lives as "enemies of the people."

Robert Cesner Jr., a 36-year-old attorney from Columbus, Ohio, said he was unable to contact officials in the justice ministry Sunday but hoped to meet the three before the end of the day.

The trial of the three Americans and 10 other British mercenaries was to have begun Tuesday but was delayed until later in the week to give Cesner time to prepare his case.

Cesner sought to contact the men as participants from 27 countries gathered to attend a government-sponsored "international inquiry" into the use of mercenaries.

The televised trial and the inquiry formed the main thrust of a campaign by Angola's Marxist-oriented government to create what the local press called "an example" for the rest of the world on the treatment of mercenaries.

Director-general of information Luis de Almeida left little doubt that the mercenaries could face harsh treatment, including being sentenced to death by firing squad.

The mercenaries fought with the pro-western National Front for the Liberation of Angola and against the Marxist regime that won Angola's civil war.

To smoke or not to smoke.

There's a good chance that lately you've been giving some thought to smoking. Many people are.

The question is, what are you going to do about it? If you've never smoked, or if you've quit smoking, we're not urging you to start. But if you're a smoker who's not ready to give up the enjoyment you get from smoking, we'd like to call your attention to Vantage.

Vantage gives you the taste you want. The unique Vantage filter, which is based on a new design concept, lets the full, rich flavor of Virginia tobaccos come through. Vantage gives you so much of what you want in a cigarette with a lot less of what you don't want.

And Vantage draws easily. You don't have to puff hard pulling the smoke through so that the joy of smoking is lost.

If all this makes sense to you, there's every reason to consider the new cigarette called Vantage.

Why not try a pack.

Squeaky Floor

By A. J. HAND

© 1976 Popular Science

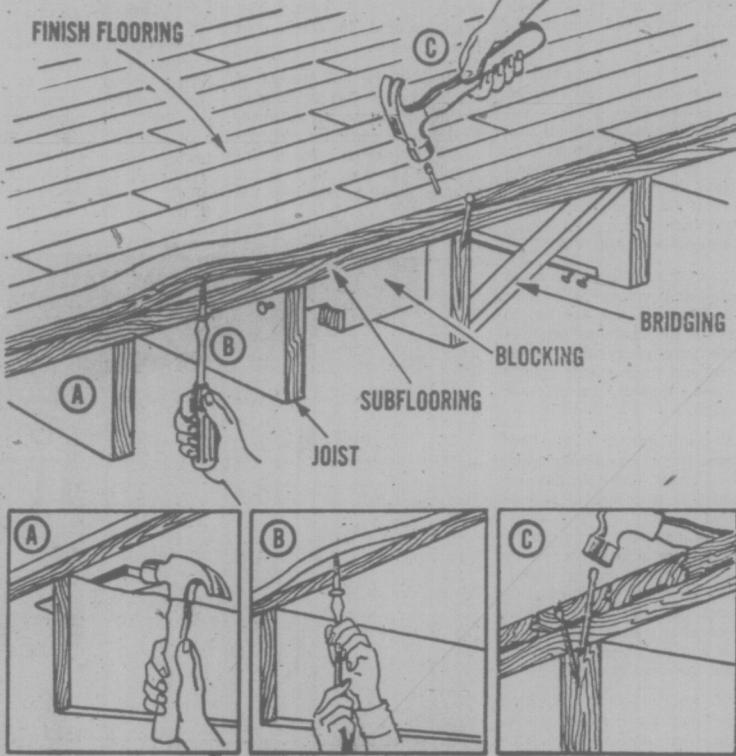

Good floors should be seen and not heard. If a variety of squeaks and pops follow you as you walk around your home you know it's time to take action. Squeaking is simply caused by loose flooring members that rub together and vibrate as your weight presses down on them and forces them to move. The remedy—securing the loose boards so they can't move—should take anywhere from 5 to 15 minutes.

First step: Pinpoint the exact location of the noise. The rubbing may be between two floorboards, between a floorboard and the subflooring (see the sketch) or between a joist and the subflooring. In rare instances, it may be between a joist and a main beam. Your job is to find out which of these possibilities is causing your problem.

Walk around, or have a helper walk around while you listen for the noise. Sometimes you can lightly touch the floor with your fingers and feel the offending boards move. If possible, observe the floor from below while your helper activates the noise. Once you've diagnosed the problem, you're ready to give the cure.

Screws or nails should solve the problem if the noise is caused by friction between two floorboards or a floorboard and the subfloor. If you can work from below, use screws about 1 1/4 inches long. Drill pilot holes for them and drive them up through the subflooring into the offending floorboard (detail B in sketch). Three screws per loose board should do the trick.

If you can't work from the house

below use nails from above. This is faster and easier than using screws, but not quite as neat. Use special hardened steel flooring nails, driven in pairs in Vee formation as shown in the sketch. Predrill for the nails, using a bit a size or two smaller than the nail shank. Sink the nail heads below the surface of the floor and fill the holes with wood putty, tinted to match the flooring.

Sometimes the subflooring will warp upwards, pulling away from its supporting joist. If the gap between subfloor and joist is small—and if you can reach it from below—drive a shingle into the gap. A wooden shingle works fine. See detail A.

But if the gap is so large it causes an unsightly bulge in the floor, you're better off trying to pull the subfloor back down against the joist. If you have access from below, screw a strip of two-by-two-inch hardwood to the side of the joist, flush with the surface of the floor and fill the holes with wood putty, tinted to match the flooring.

above. Be sure to pre-drill for the screws, which should be three inches long.

If you have no access from below, work from above. Nails in Vee formation driven through the flooring into the joist (detail C) may pull the bulge out. If not, use three-inch flathead screws. Counter-sink them below the surface of the floor and fill them over with wood putty. Make sure the screws hit the joist.

While these structural repairs are the best way to quiet a floor, you can sometimes get by with a few chemical tricks. A little glue forced between two squeaking boards may help. So might a shot of oil or powdered graphite. Or even a wood-swelling chemical like Chair Lok. This causes wood fibers to swell, forcing loose boards into a tight fit so they change their tune from tiny squeaks to golden silence.

Parents May Fight Daughter's Decision

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is 19, pregnant, and unmarried. It's too late for her to have a safe abortion, so she has decided to put up the baby for adoption. She says she doesn't want to know who adopts it, and she doesn't want them to know who or where she is—ever.

The "majority" position of traditional Judaism on these subjects is reflected by the chief rabbi of the British Commonwealth, Dr. Emmanuel Jakobovits, in his revised book: "Jewish Medical Ethics."

On Euthanasia: "... some authorities sanction the removal from a dying patient of medications or machines which only serve to prolong his agony, so long as no NATURAL means of subsistence (such as food, blood and oxygen) are withdrawn... however, some add that once artificial aids are utilized they also should not be removed..."

On Kidney Transplants: The donor should stipulate in his bequest that his eyes be given for patients suffering from, or threatened by, complete blindness. There must be prior consent of the donor or his family, and the disused part of the eye after the cornea has been removed should not be disposed of except by burial..."

With blessings on your work.—RABBI SAMUEL A. FRIEDMAN

DEAR ABBY: This morning I took a test for a job in a local school district. I was one of about 30 women.

Before the test began, I heard several women saying that they really didn't need the work; they just wanted something to do while their children were in school. One even said, "I don't need the money."

Well, I do need the money. My husband has been laid off, and we have a family to feed.

Please tell these women who take jobs just to keep "busy" that volunteer work will keep them just as busy without taking the food out of the mouths of people who eat it. Thank you. — ON THE SPOT.

Scaling Meals-for-One Is Tricky

What kind of a provider do we become when it is necessary to prepare three meals a day for one person? Shall we attempt a scaled down version of what we were accustomed to "at home"—a remembered childhood home or our own married home with several members?

Or shall we settle for meals based on bought bread with about three variations between cheese, jam and peanut butter?

All these foods are good in their way but become uninteresting with repetition. This will lead in time to deficiencies and even malnutrition as the appetite for them decreases.

Cooking for one is an increasingly important art as shown by the 1971 census listing over 800,000 people in Canada living alone compared to less than 600,000 in 1961.

The figure is expected to increase in the present census of 1976.

With a refrigerator there is more room in storing eggs, cheese, butter and milk, and an assortment of fresh vegetables for cooking and for salads.

Storage of dry foods, rice, flour of two or three kinds, dried peas and beans, wheat, oat and rye flakes, millet and soy grains — these present a space problem yet are difficult to buy in small packages at the economical price possible with three and five pound packages.

Compromises by buying first one kind; then when partly used, make a second purchase of another which either mixes with the first or can be used in place of it. By the time the first package is finished, buy a third kind, again to combine with the second or to use instead. This plan gives variety in appearance of meals and flavor.

The two pound polythene bags of frozen vegetables — peas, green beans, brussels sprouts — are more economical for a one-person cook than the 10- or 12-ounce box containers and cheaper by the portion than canned or fresh. But root vegetables are cheap.

Care of remaining portions of frozen produce consists of fast removal of portion required, exclusion of all air from the bag, refastening with wire tie or elastic band around the tightly-folded end. Have it back into the top of refrigerator freezer within five minutes of removing.

Colorful and flavorful dried herbs and spices take little storage space but are fun to use, for the beginner never is quite sure of results. Three herbs and three spices bought in small quantity in bulk are

A small garden plot where herbs, favorite vegetables and small fruits (bush fruits) are grown, is a great aid to economical variety in meals for me, as it is for a large family. Planter's on a balcony or sun-deck have proven successful; while a vented standard allotment plot 50 by 25 feet is sometimes admirably divided into two by friends who each want the smaller size.

"I never do any cooking now" say some older people, both men and women. This results too often in a diet of tea or coffee with bread.

Cooking is preparing an omelette or a skillet (frypan) meal of quickly-cooked vegetables with a little fresh meat; or a small baking dish of muffins, cookies, or yeast rolls.

These efforts last longer for one meal and when made at home are cheaper than buying even occasionally. And more important, they contain the ingredients you like most. You will soon invent your own recipes or ways of combining. You will have something of your own skill to share with drop-in friends, and everyone will feel a little more interested in everyday living.

Bill, and I've never seen them before. I don't know what to say to them.

"One lady said she walked halfway across town to find me because her husband told her to give me $5."

Police have arrested three teenagers who they believe robbed Holmes, and they are holding $30 they found with the boys, as evidence for their trials.

"I can't be mad at those boys who robbed me," Holmes said. "I might have done the same thing as those kids, if I had been in their place."

Others stop by his wheelchair while he sells papers, dropping money in his lap.

"It's a little embarrassing," Holmes said. "Some guys come up to me and say, Hello,

I am not presenting today any special recipes for one-person cooks, for a good reason — practically all those given in this column are readily adaptable to one or two portions. The fact is usually mentioned in the methods of preparation. So watch for this.

The Long and the Short of It: Tricks Can Make You Taller

Ask Jennifer

By JENNIFER ANDERSON
Whether you view the world from above or below doesn't have to present a beauty problem if you learn to handle your proportions. No matter what your height, you can make the most of it. Here are some tips on how to cope.

Dear Jennifer:
I am 4-foot-10 and take a size three dress. I am 19 years old. Do you think I will grow? I wear platform shoes all the time to try to look taller. What else can I do? — Beverly S., Springfield, Mass.

Cheer up. There are many tiny women who are great beauties. You'd be surprised to learn how many of your favorite screen and TV stars are not much taller than you.

Psychotherapy Criticized In Treatment of Autistic

OTTAWA (CP) — Psychotherapy and drugs, two of the most common treatment methods for autism, or the inability to use language, are actually dangerous, an American expert said Friday.

Dr. Bernard Rimland, director of the San Diego Institute for Child Behavior Research told the second annual Canadian conference on autism Friday that a structured education program, controlled diet, and use of vitamins B6 and B15 offer definite hope.

"Psychotherapy doesn't work because autism isn't a mental disorder, it's a physical one," he said. "Drugs only mask symptoms and should be used only as a last resort for a short time in small amounts."

He said that because autistic children are unable to use language even basic learning is complicated for them.

But recently this barrier is broken, the child—who can be either completely withdrawn or frenziedly hyperactive—develops more normal behavior. However, he cautions, most autistic people will have to spend their lives in a sheltered environment.

"Recently we've been seeing some success establishing communication using sign language. When the child begins to communicate his ability to learn accelerates quickly."

Dr. Rimland, who has a 20-year-old autistic son, said parents often have to fight to have their children properly diagnosed, and many are incorrectly diagnosed as mentally retarded.

"We estimate that 45 of every 10,000 children born are autistic, which is equal to the number of deaf children born, but only half are properly diagnosed and get some form of treatment."

The San Diego psychologist said that no one knows exactly what causes autism, but it seems to be a neurological disorder. Neurons transmit thoughts and store memories in the brain.

"It seems that many autistic children have an inborn vitamin dependency," he said. "Their need for certain vitamins far exceeds what they could ever get in their diet."

He said his son has shown definite improvement since vitamin B15 has been added to his diet. Dr. Rimland said the use of vitamin B15 is illegal in both Canada and the United States.

"A person would have to eat 20 pounds of the stuff to kill himself," he said. "Vitamin B15 is one of the safest things around and it's easily available in Europe. I would recommend that parents of autistic children try it with their kids."

He said the condition of some autistic children improves when certain types of food are removed from their diet.

"Some seem to have an intolerance to gluten, which is found in all wheat products.

Others improve when sugar or milk are taken out of their diets, so we can say food allergies may also be part of the problem."

The Merrimac Coup is a play in which a defender deliberately sacrifices a high card, with the objective of knocking out a vital entry in an opponent's hand, usually the dummy. This coup was named after the Civil War warship that was eventually scuttled to block a harbor channel. The functioning of the Merrimack Coup can be observed in today's deal, which was played in the 1976 Vanderbilt Cup Championships.

OFT and again, a leaf blown by the wind
Falls on the broad ocean and sinks below.

'Tis never lost, where'er it left behind.

And so with every life,
what'er it kind.

It shapes itself a place,
'tis destined so.

If hence in peace or turmoil
it should go,

Its influence ever lives, as 'twas designed.

Police Union Submits Proposals

Victoria police union has submitted new contract proposals to police commissioners to launch 1976 negotiations.

President Pat Braiden said the union is making a concerted effort to reach agreement through direct bargaining with the city of Victoria negotiators.

But if it appears that talks fail to make substantive progress or that the city does not bargain in good faith, there would be an application to revert to arbitration as provided for in legislation.

Braiden said the union is not prepared to make its contract requests public at this stage, and has not yet heard any submissions from the city.

Next bargaining session is set tentatively for Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Victoria firefighters expect the first sittings of an arbitration board to deal with their contract Thursday and Friday.

President Ross Cameron said the hearings would be watched with interest by other firefighters in Greater Victoria because the city agreement usually sets the pattern for other settlements.

Passport Forgers Nabbed

MANILA (Reuters) — Police here arrested a gang which forged passports and visas for entry into Australia and Canada.

They also seized materials said to have been used in forging travel documents. These included fake immigration visas, a copy of Canadian embassy seal, passport stamp pads and fake Australian approval certificates needed to support applications for Philippines passports.

The gang had apparently sold documents for between 2,000 and 15,000 pesos ($245 to $1,750).

Sixteen people were arrested and may face a military tribunal under Philippine martial law.

The racket apparently was uncovered after people trying to reach Australia and Canada were found with passports whose photographs did not match the bearers, informed sources said.

Some people genuinely thought they had been issued with legal travel documents since the arrangements were made through travel agents, the sources added.

Island Rowers Defeated

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — West Park Secondary School got back the over-all points title on Sunday, but it was two other St. Catharines schools that stole the spotlight as the 31st Canadian schoolboy rowing championships wound up along the Henley course.

Dennis Morris High School took the championship eight for the first time, knocking off favorites Ridley College of St. Catharines and Brentwood College of Vancouver Island, while 16-year-old Brian Elliott of Sir Winston Churchill Secondary School took the championship single 90 minutes after he had combined with his 17-year-old brother Barry for the championship double.

Duncan MacDonald of West Vancouver won the novice singles.

Brentwood took firsts in the heavy four and novice heavy four. Martin Lacey, Allan Wood, Morius Felix and Brad Pettinger made up the heavy four while Fraser Roland, Brack Shock, John McKinney and Tim Gale were in the novice crew. Geoff Hall of Brentwood was second in the 145-pound singles. The Brentwood eight finished third and the Vancouver Island School finished sixth overall.

SYDNEY (Reuters) — Sally Lockyer, who swam for Australia in the Commonwealth Games and the world championships is retiring from competitive swimming at the age of 16.

Sally broke world records but was overshadowed by her friend Jenny Turrall who remains one of Australia's best Olympic medal hopes.

Burma Revolt Brews

KAREN REBEL CAMP, Kau Mu Ra, Burma (UPI) — Nine minority Burmese rebel "states" have formed a loose coalition to overthrow the regime.

Mahn Ba Zan, president of the national democratic front, told reporters at a clandestine news conference that his Karen national union and the eight other front members hope to raise an army of 100,000.

Ba Zan said the front was seeking outside support, but he ruled out aid from the Soviet Union "because it supports Ne Win with a passion."

Assistance from either China or the United States would be welcome, he said, "because they respect our line."

He said the front, formed in early May at a meeting at Karen headquarters "a six-hour boat ride from here," will ask the Communists to withdraw from states they have partially occupied in return for safe passage through front territory.

"We do not agree with the Burmese Communist Party," Ba Zan told reporters who crossed from Thailand to this rebel stronghold in southeastern Burma.

"But we do have a common enemy and the common enemy is the Ne Win regime."

If the front can arm 100,000 men and women from nine different nationalities under a joint military command, the defeat of Ne Win's 130,000-man army might not be an unrealistic goal.

MEXICO
SHAKEN

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A quake lasting more than a minute shook the Mexican capital today. Skyscrapers trembled from the force of the tremor. There were no immediate reports of casualties or damage.

Police said the quake was felt in the Pacific resort of Acapulco, 190 miles southwest of Mexico City, and in Veracruz, a Gulf of Mexico port 200 miles to the east.

Telephones continued to function in the capital and electric service was not disrupted.

Syrian
Jets Hit
Beirut

BEIRUT — Syrian jets attacked Palestinian and Leftist positions in Beirut with light missiles today and two columns of Syrian army tanks and troops advanced toward leftist Moslem strongholds on the road to the capital.

Leftist spokesmen said the Syrians were planning an attack on the capitol itself.

Moslem gunmen fought Syrian-backed Saïqa guerrillas in the streets of the city, prompting authorities to close Beirut International Airport "until further notice."

The fighting was described as one of the bloodiest battles of the 14-month old civil war.

The Syrian planes attacked Palestinian and Leftist positions in Beirut's port district, the southern suburbs and the mountain town of Sofar, 16 miles east of the capital, sources said.

Shortly after the strafing run, half-track vehicles of Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Army equipped with anti-aircraft missiles were seen touring the Moslem sector.

Palestinian sources also claim Syrian gunboats shelled the Kfelaat air base in northern Lebanon after guerrillas and renegade Moslem troops of the Lebanese Arab army occupied it.

Meanwhile, Arab League headquarters in Cairo today called an emergency meeting of Arab foreign ministers to open here Wednesday to consider "the deteriorating situation in Lebanon," a League spokesman said.

Binding
Terms
For CUPE

NANAIMO (CP) — The three striking Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) locals Sunday night voted to accept binding arbitration to settle their contract dispute with the Mid-Island Public Employers Association that began two months ago.

The three locals — 401, 406 and 1858 — went on strike April 5 here and in Ladysmith.

Labour Minister Allan Williams said that an industrial inquiry commissioner will be appointed and will have 14 days to bring in recommendations to end the dispute. The appointment was to be announced today.

Nick Mieras, spokesman for Local 606, said Sunday that the union has taken the initiative in the dispute and has called for a mediation several times, while also agreeing to an industrial inquiry commissioner weeks ago.

He said if the employers association had agreed to an industrial inquiry commissioner then, the dispute would have been over by now.

The labor minister said Sunday that the decision by the CUPE locals was a major step forward and that the dispute should be resolved within the next two weeks.

Mieras said the union pickets will remain the same until the terms of reference are determined today.

Strikers Menace Airline

KITIMAT (CP) — RCMP are investigating an incident in which eight or nine members of the Canadian Association of Smelter and Allied Workers Union are alleged to have threatened the office staff of an airline flying supplies to management staff running the Aluminum Co. of Canada mill here.

Police confirmed that they investigated an incident at the Trans-Provincial Airlines office in Terrace, about 40 miles north of here.

The assistant manager and a secretary of the airline said the union members told them the company had better stop flying food into the Alcan plant or else.

An RCMP spokesman said no charges have been laid. Meanwhile, private guards were on duty today at the airline's hangar at the Terrace airport to protect Trans-Provincial planes.

The union and Alcan are in the midst of a bitter dispute at the mill. Since Wednesday, management personnel have stayed at the mill, continuing operations, while striking union members have manned barricades and picket lines outside.

The British Columbia Labor Relations board has twice ordered the workers back to work, but has been met with refusals both times.

Peter Burton, CASAW president, said Sunday the reason for the union's work stoppage is that, "we got screwed and there seems to be an attitude that the screwing is stopping here."

During the weekend, Alcan flew a number of supervisory staff here from its smelter in Arvida, Que., to help the staff and supervisory personnel who were running the smelter.

The British Columbia Labor Relations board said normal, horizontal burials take needed space in an already overcrowded world.

135 Missing in Dam Burst

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Flood waters continued to roll across southeastern Idaho today, forcing evacuations 50 miles from the site where the Teton Dam burst two days ago.

The official death toll stood at six with 135 persons reported missing. Officials said many of the missing may just be out of touch with relatives.

A breakdown in telephone communication and road travel hampered efforts to determine the status of the missing.

The farming town of Firth was evacuated during the night, and officials said today the town was under water. No injuries were reported in the community of 400 because of an early warning that the slow-moving flood crest was coming.

Merle Tebb, federal disaster emergency director in Boise, said considerably more damage is expected. The dam burst has already flooded several communities upstream.

Part of Idaho Falls was evacuated after midnight Sunday night when a bridge, battered by the still-rising waters, began buckling and threatened to break. It held, and observers said the water level appeared to have dropped several feet by sunrise.

There were numerous rumors connected with the disaster, including one that rattlesnakes were floating downstream from the Teton Valley. Blair Selpert, police chief of Rexburg, the worst-hit city, said the valley is infested with the poisonous snakes but he has heard of no one being bitten.

Officials say thousands of people were warned that the controversial earthen dam was about to collapse and the advance notice helped reduce

$300 MILLION FROM CANADA

$5 Billion Loan

To Bail Out Sterling

HEALEY

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Canada, United States and nine other countries have joined with the World Bank to provide emergency credits of $5 billion to bolster the sagging British pound, it was announced today.

At Ottawa, a Bank of Canada spokesman said Canada will provide up to $300 million as part of the package.

CLIMBERS SAVED

FORT STEELE (CP) — Two injured members of a mountain climbing party were flown from a mountain peak near this southeastern British Columbia community today.

Bob and Mavis Bauman of Wasa are in satisfactory condition in Cranbrook Hospital after being injured when a small snow slide frustrated their efforts to climb the north-face of Fisher Peak. The third member of the party, Chris Sadlier, was uninjured and walked out for help Sunday night.

Terms of repayment of the credit will not be made public.

Generally, the money is simply made available to the British central bank for its use if and when it requires the money, officials said.

The pound rallied sharply after the new credit was announced, rising one and one-half cents against the U.S. dollar, to $1.7410.

It has opened today in New York at $1.7240 U.S., up about one-half cent from last Friday.

At Montreal, the pound was quoted at $1.6853 Canadian, up about one-third of a cent.

Denis Healey, chancellor of the exchequer, told the British House of Commons the credits provided "unprecedented support for sterling against unjustified market pressures."

He said any drawings on the stand-by credit would be temporary.

The government would be prepared to seek further loans from the International Monetary Fund if necessary.

Healey said there is no economic case for changing the British government's spending plan for the current financial year.

The team, led by Dr. Lionel Opie, said it has identified the chemical in the body which causes ventricular fibrillation — the medical term for the type of sudden heart attack which kills 25 per cent of all white South African men before they reach the age of 50.

The chemical is cyclic adenosine monophosphate, a cyclic AMP, one of thousands present in every living cell in the body.

The level and activity of the chemical rises during artificially-induced heart attacks in animals, mainly pigs, rats and baboons.

We appear to have found the cause of heart attacks, but this does not mean we have found the cure," Dr. Willem Lubbe, a member of the research team, said.

"We have found the mechanism which causes attacks and when appropriate drugs are developed it will probably be possible to prolong life."

LONDON WRACKED

BY RACE RIOTS

LONDON (Reuter) — Racial clashes were reported in three London districts today following Sunday's violent protests by Asian immigrants against the killing of a young student from India by a gang of whites.

Tension was heightened by the announcement of an immigrant organization Sunday night that vigilante groups are being set up to protect the lives of people in immigrant areas.

Police said today that two white youths were attacked by a group of Indians in Southall, the West London district where Gurindip Chagger, an 18-year-old Sikh student, was stabbed to death by a gang of whites.

Police said today that five Asians and two whites were arrested in Barking, East London, after scuffles in the street. They were expected to appear in court later today.

About 600 Asians marched on police headquarters in Southall Sunday, protesting the killing of Chagger and demanding better police protection for immigrant communities against what they described as thugs indoctrinated by right-wing groups such as the National Front.

The demonstrators sat down on the sidewalk in front of the police station, refusing to leave unless two young Asians picked up by police during the march were released — a demand met only after protracted bargaining between police and immigrant leaders.

The demonstration ended in violence, with demonstrators throwing bricks and bottles at police and at a theatre, smashing car windows and assaulting passersby. One policeman was slightly injured.

Witnesses said the eruption was apparently caused by a group of whites who shouted "Black bastards" at the demonstrators.

Cape Breton
Homes Burn

Times News Services

Forest fires, spurred by continued hot, dry weather continue to rage out of control in Manitoba and Cape Breton.

Fanned by high winds, one Cape Breton fire levelled 15 homes, a church, many businesses and fishing boats in the tiny community of Mainie N.S.

The church had been a landmark for fishermen, who were able to see its spire from the sea.

Small groups of villagers today stood in the streets and wept openly.

At least two firefighters have been taken to hospital suffering from smoke inhalation but were not injured seriously.

In the early hours today, residents began to return to their homes after finding temporary refuge with friends and relatives in nearby Louisbourg.

At least three fires besides the Mainie Nieuw blaze were burning on Cape Breton Island, including a major out-break at Big Ridge, near Marion Bridge, which was out of control along a 10-mile front.

In Manitoba, a fire three miles by 10 miles burned out of control in part of the 1,065-square-mile Whiteshell provincial park.

Cottagers and campers have been moved from the area.

More than 160 men were fighting the fire Sunday, transported by three military and two civilian helicopters.

In northwestern Ontario, about 50 persons in the small railway community of Allandale and surrounding area, 125 miles north of Thunder Bay, left their homes Saturday night as the fire approached the region.

Lightning

NIVERVILLE, Man. (CP) — Two Winnipeg residents were killed Sunday afternoon when a severe thunder and lightning storm hit this southern Manitoba community.

Wayne Petrusik, 28, and Adele Ross, 34, died when lightning struck a tree under which they had sought shelter from the storm. They were among participants at field trials of the Manitoba Dog and Gun Club.

Mary Penney, 32, of Thunder Bay was treated in hospital and released.

The lightning strike also killed a dog.

A-BOMB BLASTS HOLE FOR SOVIET RESERVOIR

MOSCOW (AP) — This Soviet Union has solved a water shortage in central Asia with an atom bomb, blowing a hole in the ground to make a reservoir, the news agency Novosti reported today.

The agency said the underground nuclear blast carved out the reservoir in a dried-up river bed and the following spring the site was filled with rainwater. Scientific tests showed the radioactivity of the water is within safe limits, Novosti said.

The report gave no date for the blast, saying only that it took place some years ago. Since then the reservoir has supplied water for irrigating crops and for watering cattle without any harmful effects, Novosti said.

Keep Nose Out of Air Control, Que. Warned

MONT GABRIEL, Que. (CP) — Quebec Liberal MPs urged the federal government Saturday to press ahead with introduction of bilingual air control in Quebec airports and Health Minister Marc Lalonde cautioned the Quebec provincial government to keep its nose out of the controversy.

After a two-day special meeting of 50 ministers and MPs, including Prime Minister Trudeau, a cautious news release was issued saying Quebec Liberals roundly endorsed the government policy of bilingualism in all federal jurisdictions.

At least a few Liberal MPs were disturbed that the results of the meeting were couched in such broad terms, rather than getting down to particular cases.

A number of Liberal back-benchers are in sympathy with French-language air controllers who have split with their English-language counterparts over the use of French in Quebec airports.

The Quebec controllers have said they will not cooperate with Montreal lawyer John Keenan, appointed by the government as a one-man commission of inquiry to look into safety aspects of bilingual air control in Quebec.

They charge Keenan with bias against the policy and say he should at least have a French-Canadian co-commissioner.

The Quebec government has endorsed the stand of the Quebec controllers, but Lalonde cautioned the provincial administration to stay out of the controversy.

"We do not need the crutch of Quebec to help us defend language rights," Lalonde told reporters after the meeting ended.

The meeting was held in a mountain-top resort in the Laurentians, but Lalonde said the MPs were too busy to take advantage of the sunny weather and the resort's facilities.

However, Trudeau took advantage of the noon break Saturday to take some fancy dives from a 15-foot platform while a group of admirers watched.

While the meeting appeared especially concerned with bilingualism, the statement said other topics such as Montreal dairy farming and the constitution also were raised.

Lalonde told reporters Ottawa already has increased subsidies to the farmers, an indication that a meeting this week between the farmers and the government will produce no new financial help.

More Passengers, Fewer Cars on Ferries

Higher ferry rates imposed last week apparently had little effect on travel during the first weekend of June.

Preliminary totals for weekend ferry traffic indicate higher passenger loads but fewer vehicles than for the first weekend of June a year ago.

B.C. Ferries traffic manager Ken Stratford said a breakdown of figures would not be available until Tuesday.

He reiterated, however, that apprehension about a ferry workers' strike had depressed normal ferry passenger traffic, until it became clear that ferry crews would not take job action pending resolution of a labor dispute by industrial inquiry commission.

Meanwhile, there has been popular feeling that ferry loadings would be adversely affected by a jump in rates effective June 1, causing most fares to double, some to triple.

Stratford said the trend last week rose to approximately normal traffic levels by the weekend, supporting the ferry authority's contention that higher rates did not have the effect on travel that the threatened work stoppage did.

He said long-range statistics show that 60 per cent of ferry traffic is business-oriented and would take place notwithstanding a hike in ferry rates because businesses do not regard the cost of travel as a factor in making business arrangements.

For the Friday-Monday period, more individual passengers were carried on the major ferry routes than on the same weekend in 1975, with almost as many vehicles, Stratford said.

This could be an indication that fewer people using the ferry system felt it necessary to take their cars with them when travelling to or from the mainland, for a saving of at least $10 per round trip.

Ferry routes are an essential part of the provincial highway system, the chamber declared, and there was agreement that the ferry authority should not have to be self-sustaining.

The Times survey showed the biggest increase in rental units was in unfurnished apartments.

There were 95 available after the June 1 renting period, up from 24 on the same day in 1975. There were 32 furnished apartments, up from 12.

The supply of houses for rent had also improved. There were 46 unfurnished houses available this year, up from nine, and eight furnished houses for rent, up from six.

The number of single rooms was nine, unchanged from last year, while 25 housekeeping rooms were available, up from 10.

Rents were up across the board.

In 1975 the range of rents for a single room was $60 to $100 per month. This year the range had moved up to $70 to $125.

The basic two-bedroom unfurnished apartment unit rented for an average of $190 in 1975. This year the average was $250. Last year 75 per cent of the units were offered at $200 per month or less. Now it is difficult to find a modern two-bedroom apartment under $200.

However, the rental market is still very tight. A list of 809 rental units in an area with a population of almost 250,000 is still far below what is needed.

"Any attractive rental unit that becomes available is usually gone within one week," Thomson said.

Budding Biologists At William Head

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

The biology lab is a borrowed hall. The benches are actually tables with shakily folding-metal legs.

To get light for their microscopes the students move nearer the windows.

The atmosphere could easily be that of a seminar at a financially troubled college — the half-dozen male students, hair stylishly long, lounge casually in wooden chairs.

Instructor Bob Pauwels doesn't seem to mind the relaxed air. In fact he is too fair casual, dressed in work-boots, blue jeans and half-unbuttoned sports shirt.

But the difference is Pauwels dresses as he pleases. His students wear government-issue green denim — they are inmates at William Head.

Biology is among a number of courses offered at the federal medium-security institution located about 15 miles from Victoria on a rocky promontory in Metchosin.

"We emphasize the academic program — in particular Grade 12 equivalency (GED) and Grade 10 upgrading," says Peter Murphy, assistant director of occupational development.

When asked if it might seem more logical to give prison inmates vocational training, Murphy said the majority of inmates lack the academic standard to get into trades programs, although there are a number of vocational programs available.

The other Sooke school district teacher working with Pauwels is Reg Miller, who is currently organizing examinations for new arrivals at the prison to determine their level of education.

Right now it is a sort of hit and miss operation.

Inside the biology lab, teacher Pauwels is called away.

The student inmates continue their lab work, delicately slicing sponge specimens with razor blades to make wet-mount slides for cell-structure study under the microscope.

"We don't need rehabilitation, you know. That's what they do for paragliders," says one inmate.

"Not so," says another. "We're all here for a reason. They want to rehabilitate our anti-social attitudes. You play, you pay."

"It's not that cut and dried just don't call me socially retarded," says the first.

The program has given inmates some new areas of achievement and pride.

For example they've recently formed a student council — which they believe is the first in any Canadian prison.

Inmates are allowed to meet privately with as many students from the academic program in attendance.

At least one problem arose in forming a council. "The members weren't part of the crowd that was involved in student politics back in high school," Pauwels said.

Changed PSAC

Still His Goal

Gordon Campbell's six year fight to bring "democracy" to the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC) is far from over despite his unsuccessful bid last week to seek the presidency of the union, Canada's third largest.

Weekend Thieves Get Little

Thieves broke into three businesses and a school in Saanich overnight Saturday but all they apparently got for their efforts was about $11 in cash, Saanich police said today.

A sporting goods store and a hobby shop in the Royal Oak Shopping Centre were entered after a window in the front door of both establishments had been smashed.

A police spokesman said a cash register in the hobby shop was opened but there was no money in the till. An unsuccessful attempt was made to pry open the cash register in the sporting goods store.

Lochside elementary school, 1145 Royal Oak, was also broken into. The principal's office was entered, doors opened, but nothing appeared to have been taken.

Police believe those three break-ins were connected but not a fourth, reported at Charm Beauty Salon, 5140 Cordova Bay. There, entry was gained through an insecure louvred window. A desk was ransacked and $11 stolen.

All the break-ins were discovered Sunday morning.

Members of the Victoria Motorcycle Club carried out races and displays on the beach, the highlight being a leap through a fiery screen.

The driver this year was Steve Frankson.

He finished the 30-mile course in a record time of 27 minutes and 20 seconds, well ahead of the rest of the 17-strong fleet. (Pictures on Page 40).

Brian Roberts placed second. Third was Norm Lambert, driving an entry from Bill Bailey's Garden Centre. Gary Haskell had worked on Roberts on his bathtub.

The Jack Hole Memorial Trophy for the first firefighter to finish went to Gary Smith of the department of national defence's fire department.

Smith said he has been lobbying for six years to get the constitutional changes and that his running for president of the PSAC last week in Victoria was mainly an attempt to spotlight his concern.

In the election PSAC vice-president Andrew Stewart won with 181 votes over another vice-president, Bill Doherty, who got 126. Campbell received only eight votes.

Campbell said that when the PSAC was formed in 1967 it was understood the members would draft the constitution. But that authority was usurped by the departmental organizations, which up to then represented the federal civil servants at the bargaining table.

"The members have been defrauded ... literally defrauded ... out of their legal rights," he charged.

He said PSAC members pay two sets of dues — one to the departmental organization they belong to and another to the PSAC — and therefore should have two votes.

He compared the situation to having the provincial legislators select the members of the federal parliament without having a general election.

Campbell felt the departmental organizations were redundant.

"Essentially it's a power struggle," he said. "The departmental organizations don't want to relinquish the power they have."

He said it has caused internal divisions within the alliance and has eroded the clout the PSAC should have in its collective bargaining with the federal Treasury Board.

MP Questions Seal 'Boycott'

Victoria Tory MP Allan McKinnon said today he would ask the fisheries minister about a threatened boycott of Canada by American tourists because of federal seal-hunting policy.

A boycott gathering support in western states would have particular effect on tourist-oriented B.C., local tourist operators feel.

McKinnon said he heard at the weekend of a boycott being organized in Portland claiming to have 5,000 supporters who will not visit Canada or purchase Canadian products until the government halts the slaughter of baby seals off Labrador and Newfoundland.

Lawyer Roger Tilbury, of Portland, indicated the boycott involves supporters other than in the immediate Portland area, people who have signed pledges opposing the Canadian seal policy.

Tilbury wrote to the Times: "Please do not underestimate the strength of our resolve. We mean to keep our pledge. We will not return to your lovely country until and unless your government does decide to protect these beautiful animals. We feel they have a right to live, too."

Copies went to Prime Minister Trudeau and Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc.

McKinnon said he would ask LeBlanc what representations he had received on this subject, but he expressed some doubt about the effectiveness of a boycott on tourist travel.

"I don't know if that boycott is going to amount to much. The difference in money value is going to have more effect on tourist travel than anything else," the member said.

In a recent visit to northern states he said he was amazed at the lower cost of food and accommodation compared with prices at home.

He suggested Americans are more conscious of what he called the false value of Canadian money, which is being exchanged at about 4 per cent premium over the U.S. dollar.

Another disadvantage of boycott action at this time is that the annual seal hunt is ended, McKinnon said.

The member noted the Maritime people have a much different attitude toward sealing than people in other parts of Canada. To some families on marginal income participation in the seal hunt represents a significant part of their subsistence and may be the only time of the year they get off welfare or unemployment insurance.

"They are very keen about it in Newfoundland," he said.

Someday Again, a Dog for All Seasons

ONCE IN A WHILE, DICK drops in on us with his side-kick. This friend of a friend is named Seal. She is a black Labrador retriever of the true, heavy-boned persuasion, with the prematurely grey muzzle of old age.

Seal's manners are impeccable. As a matter of routine, Dick leaves her outside when he comes calling. With only the merest hint of reproach in her manner, Seal settles herself at the foot of our steps to wait. But as a dogless couple with a feeling for big black Labs, Win and I lose no time in persuading Dick that Seal is welcome indoors.

We was just such a dog as Seal remains a welcome guest because her solid presence, and the feel of her broad, intelligent head under a casually-dropped hand, bring memories of Paddy, our first black Lab.

She greets Dick as if they had been parted for days rather than for a few minutes. Then she makes her manners to us.

She brings her a handful of dry cat food from the bag left when our tough little Cleo departed this world. For large dogs of a working breed, Labradors are moderate eaters. Seal disposes of the treat de-

I wouldn't go so far, as to claim that every Labrador is a paragon of poohs.

Rarely enough to underscore the virtues of the breed, a bad Lab does turn up. And she, he would resume his place beside me with the collar nipped daintily between his teeth.

Oftener than not, the fellow I was strolling with would notice the change in our circumstances before I did, and comment on it with glee.

"You dog's done it to you again," he would tell me. Or he would ask with a snicker, "Who's leading who?"

The sadness I felt when that dog and I parted company was heightened by an element of relief. If our relationship had continued much longer, I'm not sure what turn it might have taken.

We would be walking and talking, doggo sedate on his leash at my side. He would wait until the conversation engaged me to the point where my vigilance relaxed. Then he would drop back an inch at a time, increasing the slack in his leash.

He would then shuck the slip-collar over his ears.

But that was only the start of this four-footed Houdini's act. Having achieved his free-away from those parts, which it did with all possible speed.

While Dick told us about the bear, his hand strayed to Seal's head. As a now-dogless couple, we envied him a loyalty which is denied us.

We live at the edge of a highway that is a death-trap for dogs and cats. Perhaps some year this will change. The much-discussed bypass could become a reality instead of the pie-in-the-sky hope it has been to Up-Islanders these many years. Then we'd feel free to have a dog again.

A Labrador, naturally. If you've ever owned, or been owned by, a Lab of Seal's quality, or Paddy's, there's no other breed that exerts quite the same appeal.

Certainly Dick's Seal, who is everything that a Lab should be, offers potent persuasions. After her visits, there's a momentary sense of an element missing from our lives. It's the nuisance and blessing combined which comes with having a big black Lab around the place.

EXTRA $350 FOR ALDERMEN

Saanich council stuck by its guns Monday to give themselves raises in pay.

Aldermen will receive an additional $350 this year and Mayor Ed Lum's salary will go from $16,500 to $17,078.

A bylaw authorizing the controversial pay increases received three readings in spite of council having received a letter from Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis asking council to show restraint.

Alderman Joe Bourque, Mary Casillo and Maurice Johnson voted against the increases.

Bourque asked council to reconsider, pointing out the council had voted itself 12 per cent increases in December.

"It's a matter of principle," Bourque said. "After all, we got 12 per cent in December and I think that's enough."

Lum said if Curtis had ordered a rollback he would have complied. Because Curtis had not, Lum said he would still support the increase.

Lum said more than half the councils in British Columbia had increased their wages and Saanich should not penalize itself unless it was ordered to do so by Curtis.

Ald. Roy Wootton quipped he wouldn't object to a rollback on $48,000 (Curtis's salary).

Ald. Sandy Noel noted that any alderman who didn't think he was worth the increase could always refuse to take it.

Council received two more letters opposing the increases.

J. W. Bradford of 4890 McBriar wrote that candidates seeking election should be made to sign statements they were willing to serve at the salaries in effect at that time.

Ruth Clay, president of the Royal Oak and District Ratepayers Association, said council was "encouraging others to follow an inflationary pattern."

The honeymoon will be brief and they will have to forget about Niagara Falls. The groom will be out on a three-day pass which restricts him to a distance of 25 miles from prison.

"This is a rather big decision in my life," says MacBain with considerable understatement.

"I love Wilf dearly but there is so much at stake for both of us. It's not just that he is in prison and has spent about 16 of his 45 years behind bars. I know he will never go to jail again. But what if something goes wrong, how would it affect his ability to change his lifestyle? Maybe it would be a break from his past."

She is the spokeswoman for the Community Action Group of Victoria and is active in a number of campaigns to help people who are physically handicapped, or on welfare or in prison.

"We just thought it would be better," MacBain said. "That's the name I'm known by in the community and that's the name my children carry. And it would be a break from his past."

The title of the executive position he is seeking with the CAG drew a chuckle from his fellow convicts. He is running for member at large.
